WORK OF ART

This statue of St. Francis is perched atop the headstone of Beniamino Bufano (1890-1970) in Holy Cross Cemetery. The statue is decorated with colorful mosaic tiles.

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Swashbucklers from the Barbary Coast, banking barons, gold prospectors and bawdy house madams — all lie buried beneath the grassy knolls of the Colma cemeteries.

Some of their graves are marked with marble monuments rising 20 feet into the sky. Others are remembered with plain stone tablets bearing only their names.

Most people laugh about Colma's "grave business." But the significance of these famous and infamous plots was not lost on Samuel Chandler.

A history buff and city librarian of Daly City, Chandler began seeking national recognition for Colma's cemeteries three years ago. After he spent many hours filling out forms and meeting with various state agencies, the state agreed this year to nominate Colma's 14 cemeteries — plus three in unincorporated Colma and one in Daly City — to the National Register of Historic Landmarks.

Chandler is waiting to hear whether the federal government will accept that nomination. "I've learned not to expect anything in a hurry," he said, noting that historical commissions move in slow and mysterious ways.

Chandler said Colma would not have been blessed with so many famous graves had it not been for San Francisco's aversion to them.

"San Francisco is the only community I know of that banished its dead," he explained. Foreseeing little land to develop within the city limits, San Francisco's Board of Supervisors began discouraging burials in the city in the last 1800s.

Soon cemetery companies began springing up among the vegetable and flower farms in the area that is present-day Colma. The Catholic Church started the first cemetery, Holy Cross, in 1887. Two years later, a Jewish organization began the Hills of Eternity Cemetery.

San Francisco supervisors escalated their war against cemeteries in 1937, when they voted to evacuate the city's existing cemeteries in order to make room for housing and street development.

Their action prompted a group of citizens to file a referendum petition with 21,000 signatures. The supervisors narrowly won their point in the November 1937 election, when the vote was 82,983 to 65,920 in favor of banishing cemeteries from the city.

During the next 11 years, the bodies of over 145,000 San Francisco pioneers were moved from seven burial grounds in San Francisco to the Cypress Lawn, Greenlawn, Woodlawn and Holy Cross Cemeteries in what later became known as Colma.

Thousands of the excess tombstones were dumped into the Pacific Ocean to form a breakwater near the east jetty of the St. Francis Yacht Harbor in San Francisco. As the supervisors had planned, offices, schools and roads were built where the city's cemeteries once stood.

As Daly City grew larger, it threatened to swallow up the cemeteries in its midst. Not wishing to have their lands annexed, the cemetery owners formed their own government. Eventually, citizens chose the name of Colma and voted to incorporate their town.

Today Colma's green open spaces and non-existent property taxes are the envy of other communities.

The 18 cemeteries that are being considered for national landmark status illustrate California's lure for persons of many backgrounds. There are four Jewish, three Chinese, one Catholic, one Serbian, one Russian, one Japanese and one Greek cemetery.

ONLY THE GOOD DIE YOUNG

The small headstones in the children's section of the Holy Cross Cemetery echo the grief of many parents. The grave marker at right includes a sculpture of a departed child, while the one at left includes a little girl's pictures.

Nuns of different orders are buried in a section of Holy Cross Cemetery.

Unusually Low Turnout for Adult School

Publicizing adult education classes in two local newspapers rather than with brochures was penny-wise and pound foolish, Adult Education Principal Louis Martin told trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District Monday night.

He told the trustees that only 50 percent of the usual number of students had turned out for adult ed classes this fall, forcing him to cancel 39 of the 95 classes scheduled.

Martin said it would cost $6,000 to $7,000 to reinstate the pre-Proposition 13 policy of printing brochures covering the winter and spring quarters, compared to a cost of $1,200 for advertisements in two newspapers for fall classes.

But the trustees found other reasons for the drop in adult ed attendance this fall. Trustee Jane Powell said she thought the cost of adult ed classes was driving people away, even though JUHSD's adult ed classes are among the least expensive in the county.

Trustee John Sloane told Martin, "I'm not convinced from what you've said that the dire results are the result of no brochure."

Sloane pointed out that Martin had warned of a catastrophe when he had tried last summer to persuade the board not to eliminate the brochures. He added that South San Francisco has had no problem publicizing its adult ed classes solely through newspapers.

Superintendent Floyd Gonella suggested approving the printing of brochures for the winter quarter and having Martin report on the results.

The trustees agreed, stipulating that Martin would have to find the money for the brochures in his existing budget.

Other business:

OPINION — Gonella formally informed the trustees of news he previously had told them individually: that the state and county have warned the district not to pay salary hikes to staff since to do so may jeopardize the district's chances of receiving $7 million in state bail-out funds. Gonella said the district and teachers are trying to resolve the matter in court.

FRINGE BENEFITS — The board unanimously passed a resolution deducting payment of benefits from teachers who participated in the strike, on a per diem basis.

SHOUTING MATCH — Just before the meeting adjourned, a frequent critic of the board, parent Esther Talaveras, asked the trustees to speak up, saying, "A few of us can't hear." Her remark prompted Mrs. Powell to say, "Maybe if you were quiet, lady, you could hear." Mrs. Powell's comment caused a man in the audience to criticize Mrs. Powell for being rude. The trustees adjourned to an executive session amidst catcalls from the audience.

Teacher's Complaint Rejected

Trustees of the Jefferson Union High School District voted unanimously Monday night to deny a grievance filed by a teacher who said the district should have hired her for a counseling position at Jefferson High School in Daly City.

Arguing on Margaret Cormier's behalf, Louis Silberman of Local 1481 of the American Federation of Teachers, told the trustees that district officials failed to follow hiring procedures outlined in the teachers' contract when they hired Steven Mezzera instead of Mrs. Cormier for the counseling job.

Specifically, Silberman charged:

• Mrs. Cormier was better qualified for the job than Mezzera.

• Being Spanish-speaking and of Hispanic descent, Mrs. Cormier should have been given an additional edge over other applicants for the job. Silberman said the Fair Employment Practices Commission and other agencies had been notified of her complaint.

• When Jefferson Principal Richard Burt interviewed her, he

Cemeteries Can Claim Fame

Each of the 18 cemeteries being considered for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Landmarks has a different claim to fame. Following is a guide to the cemeteries.

Colma cemeteries:

Cypress Lawn — The oldest general cemetery. Cypress Lawn was established in 1897 and contains the graves of many notable Americans, including newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst; Thomas Oliver Larkin, who was the first and only U.S. consul to California; book publisher Hubert Howe Bancroft; copper magnate Daniel Cowan Jacking, sugar king Claus Spreckels; and Francis Joseph "Lefty" O'Doul, whose headstone includes a baseball bat and ball and reads, "...He was here at a good time and had a good time while he was here."

Hugh Whittell's grave is in the shape of a pyramid and reads, "After many endeavours my affairs to fix, A short time I will occupy less than two by six."

The cemetery also includes a monument to 35,000 early Californians who were moved from Laurel Hill in San Francisco to this cemetery.

Holy Cross — Standing guard over the entrance to this Catholic cemetery is a winged angel. The tombs in this cemetery represent many periods of art. Notable persons buried here include Beniamino Bufano, California governor John C. Downey and A.P. Giannini. There are sections for nuns, monks, archbishops and children.

Eternal Home - The most predominent feature of this Jewish cemetery is the burial ground called the Court of the Twelve Tribes of Israel.

Olivet — One of the most beautifully landscaped cemeteries, Olivet contains a mausoleum, columbarium and chapel in ivy-covered buildings. Portions of the cemetery are set aside for circus clowns and show folk and the Sailors Union of the Pacific. A statue reads from the Book of the Dead at the entry drive.

Italian Cemetery — Built in Italian style, this cemetery features elaborate headstones carved of imported marble. The tombs are built in rows above ground.

Woodlawn — A large monument to the Masonic pioneers of San Francisco, topped with an elk, sits near the entrance to this cemetery. Sections are devoted to U.S. veterans, marine cooks and stewards and national groups, including the Chinese. Many of the Chinese headstones include enameled pictures of the deceased. Woodlawn is entered through stately arches sculpted of granite from the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Greenlawn — This cemetery is known for its monuments to special-interest groups. Among them are areas for pilots, stagehands and Americans who served in the armed forces of the British Empire and the Commonwealth of Canada.

Eternal Home — The best known feature of this Jewish cemetery is a burial ground called the Twelve Tribes of Israel which is separated with 12 pillars.

Hills of Eternity and Home of Peace - These twin cemeteries share a driveway and serve people of the Jewish faith. The plots are two feet above ground.

Greek Orthodox — A sea of orthodox crosses greets visitors to this cemetery. Pictures of the dead are preserved in enamel on many headstones.

Japanese — Tombstones in this cemetery are marked in Japanese and English, testifying to the mixed heritage of those who lie here.

Salem — One of four cemeteries for the Jewish, this one has a large number of headstones carved with poetic epitaphs.

Serbian — Established in 1907, this cemetery serves members of orthodox groups. A mosaic of St. Nicholas covers the back wall of one mausoleum.

Unincorporated Colma cemeteries:

Ning Yung — Colorful Chinese characters are painted on the brick and metal gate to this cemetery. Inside are several fireplaces where families supposedly burned the clothes of their dead. Many of the tombstones feature pictures of the dead.

Tung Sen — Established in 1936, this cemetery contains the graves of Americanized Chinese residents. The graves are marked with small stones without much decoration.

Russian — Adjacent to the Ning Yung and Tung Sen cemeteries, this cemetery is reached via a long, tree-lined lane. Headstones are arranged in 13 rows and ae inscribed in both Russian and English.

Daly City cemetery:

Chinese — Located at Hickey and Callan Boulevards, this cemetery was established by the powerful Chinese members of The Six Companies. It includes monuments to Chinese-Americans and fireplaces that once were used to burn strips of paper carried during processions.

the family's choice. Chandler said the cemetery owners have never discriminated against the dead.

Sections of other cemeteries are devoted to particular groups. In addition to areas for veterans of the armed forces, children and religious orders, there are sections especially for circus clowns and show people, marine cooks, pilots, typographers, Salvation Army soldiers, laundry workers, freedom fighters, engineers, butchers and even residents of nursing homes.

One cemetery, Pets' Rest, is reserved for animals. The rest are for humans.

Among the celebrities buried in the cemeteries are Beniamino Bufano, sculptor, who rests beneath a copy of one of his statues; newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst, who lies in an unmarked but grandiose tomb; banker and railroad builder Charles Crocker; John Donald Daly, the founder of Daly City; Emperor Norton, who proclaimed himself ruler of the U.S.; Wyatt Earp; Claus Spreckels, who built a sugar empire; Ishi, California's last known stone age man; A.P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America; Hubert H. Bancroft, historian and book publisher; and many governors, mayors and senators.

The inscription on a monument to the pioneers buried in Cypress Lawn tells what they all had in common. It reads, "From the ends of the earth, desire and a love of the wide blue sky of freedom led men to California."

Each shaped events in an individual way. The end result of their efforts is known as history.

asked only three questions which did not permit her to give much information about her qualifications.

• Superintendent Floyd Gonella lied when he told a grievance committee Oct. 19 that Mezzina had not been hired, because a bulletin dated Oct. 18 announced his appointment.

•Mrs. Cormier was not notified in writing, as specified in the contract, of the reasons she was not hired for the position.

In his rebuttal, Gonella said his secretary personally had delivered a letter regarding the matter to the union's offices at 4 p.m. Monday, but no one was there.

He explained that seeing the announcement of Mezzina's hiring in a bulletin caused him to ask the principal to take Mezzina out of the position.

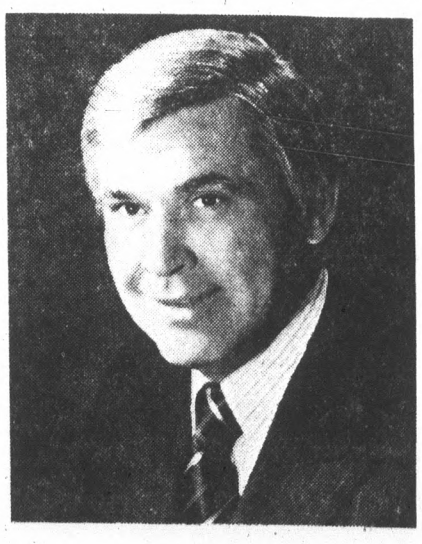
CAMPAIGN STATEMENT BY CONGRESSMAN
LEO RYAN



The most serious problem we face today is inflation. Government spending is a major cause of inflation. During the past two years, I voted for cuts in government spending that totalled 157 billion dollars. I voted against the impending increase in Social Security taxes, and I voted for the recent 19 billion dollar tax cut bill.

If you send me back to Washington, I will continue my efforts to cut the cost of government and to cut taxes.

Rings 'n' Rice 'n' Wedding Rites

Simons-Montague

Honeymooning in Tahiti before establishing a home in San Mateo are Edward Montague and his bride, the former Marcia Simons, who were married Saturday at St. Theresa's Catholic Church in South Lake Tahoe.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Simons of Mesa, Ariz., and the late Mr. Simons, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montague of Daly City.

The newlyweds were honored after the wedding at a reception at the Edgewood Country Club in Lake Tahoe.

For her marriage, the bride wore a turn-of-the-century antique lace and seersucker gown of off-white. Her honor attendant, Mrs. Frank Hackett of Cleveland, Ohio, wore a flowing peach floor length gown and her flower girl, Michelle Montague of Santa Rosa, wore a blue checked frock.

Jerry Montague of San Francisco stood with his brother as best man and Michael Montague, another brother, seated guests with Bob Gibbons and Rex Arnott. Ring bearer duties were performed by David Motoyama of Tokyo.

A flight attendant for Trans World Airlines, the bride is a graduate of Arizona State University where she majored in journalism. She met her husband while she was employed as a newspaper reporter for the Casa Grande Dispatch in Arizona where he was umpiring spring training games at the Giants Camp there as a National League baseball umpire.

The bridegroom also has another brother, Gary Montague.

(Marcia Simons)

Domenichelli-Henderson

Southern California was the honeymoon destination of William "Skip" Henderson and his bride, the former Karen Domenichelli, who are making their home in San Mateo. They were married at the Millbrae Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Domenichelli of South San Francisco who hosted a reception after the ceremony at the Brentwood Lodge in that city.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. June Henderson who also live in South San Francisco.

Karen said her vows in a white polyester satin gown detailed with embroidery and further accented with a scalloped train and veil. Her attendants wore pink gowns.

Paula Rayo served as maid of honor and Denise and Laurie Domenichelli, the bride's sisters, shared bridesmaid duties with Nancy Nunley, Beth Rose and Kathy Guaraldi.

Angie Harris served as the flower girl and John Robinson was the ring bearer.

Skip asked his brother, Mike Henderson, to be his best man. Ushers included John Falzon, Rich Duran, Jerry Oberti, Steven Crociani and Mark Mata.

The newlyweds are both South San Francisco High School graduates.

Maynard-Lancaster

San Ramon is the first address for Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Dean Lancaster (Carrie Ann Maynard) who honeymooned in San Diego after their marriage at the San Ramon Country Club. A reception followed at the same site.

The Rev. Jim Griffes performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Maynard of Dublin, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walt Lancaster. Both families live in Dublin, however, prior to 1974 the bride's family lived in South San Francisco.

THE RODNEY LANCASTERS

(Carrie Maynard)

Carrie, who was given in marriage by her father, said her vows in a white floor length gown with sheer, bouffant sleeves and a long train. Her attendants wore peach colored gowns and picture hats.

Bonnie Marsalec was the maid of honor and Diane Rickowski, Janett Bullard and Laura Shelton, sister of the bridegroom, served as secondary attendants.

Best man duties were performed by John Furtado and ushering duties were shared by Ted Maynard, brother of the bride, Rick Shelton and Scott Beaty.

The newlyweds are both Dublin High School graduates. The bride, who attended elementary school in South San Francisco, is also the sister of Les Maynard. Her husband received his associate of arts degree from Chabot Jr. College. He also has a brother, Mike Lancaster.

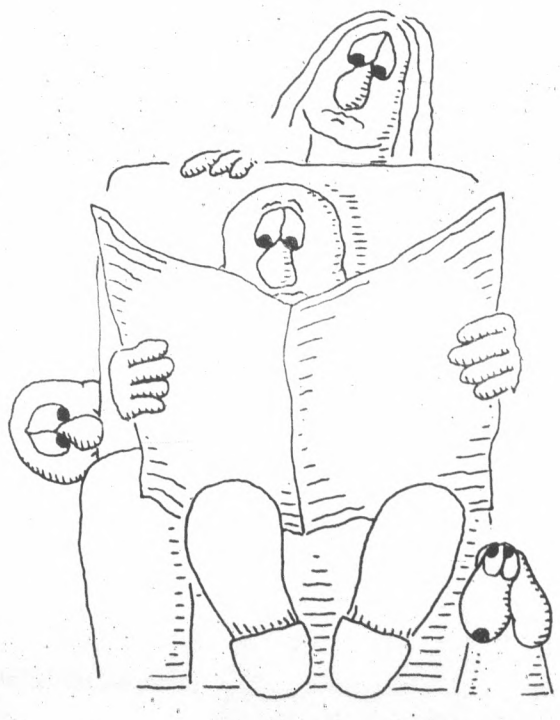
SHOULD GOOD OLD HILLSDALE KEEP NEW TAX REVENUES OUT OF SAN MATEO?



We all like Hillsdale. They have had a huge success in San Mateo, and all of us who live here have contributed to it.

But now it seems Hillsdale is getting a little selfish. The Bohannon Development Co., owners of the Hillsdale shopping center, are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign money to stop any shopping competition—in spite of the benefits to the people of San Mateo.

The proposed Mariner's Island shopping center meets all the requirements of the General Plan already approved for the City. It will bring San Mateo over $800,000 in new tax revenues every year, plus $300,000 for our county and school districts. It will also bring San Mateo 2,400 permanent new jobs, an annual payroll of $24 million, new stores like Bullock's, JC Penney, and Liberty House, and excellent recreational and community facilities.

Well, the folks who own Hillsdale want all this changed. They want you to vote for a change in the General Plan that would eliminate the new shopping center, eliminate competition, and eliminate all the other economic benefits to the City.

We don't think that's being fair to San Mateo.

Vote no on changing the approved General Plan.

Creating Collage From Fantasy and Fabric

By RO LOGRIPPO
Staff Writer

When Helen Webber feels creative, she picks up some plush fabric and starts cutting it into small pieces.

The sign of an eccentric seamstress? Not hardly, considering she doesn't sew, knit or do any other stitchery.

Nor is the Rhode Island School of Design graduate a scissor-happy madwoman bent on destruction.

When Helen Webber starts snipping she's just tackling one part of the intricate process involved in creating her fabric collage tapestries — wall hangings that may require as many as 70 swatches of material and weeks of work to produce.

"I guess you could say I use scissors like other artists use paintbrushes."

HELEN WEBBER

"If I did Christo's fence, there'd be graphics all over it . . ."

Helen says matter-of-factly during a private interview with The Times. "If I did Christo's fence," she speculates, "there'd be graphics all over it."

During the guided tour of her workshop, she explains some of the steps in assembling her large tapestries which owe part of their textured look to the rich-colored yarns used to surround each piece of fabric. Neither fabric nor yarn is sewn in place, rather, they are bonded to the backing with a specially devised pasty white adhesive. ("It's not Elmer's," she replies when asked, "I already tried that!")

Like their creator, Helen Webber's designs are bold and lively. They rely heavily on the world of fantasy and might well be described as fabric art. Whether she's creating an oversized butterfly wing or a view of night dancers, the artist manages to convey a feeling of excitement and a sense of whimsy in her designs, which often have nature or animals as their subject matter.

"I don't know where I get my ideas," Helen says with a shrug, adding that although she has an appreciation for the outdoors, she hates spiders and camping. "I'm really a city slicker who likes creature comforts," she confesses.

Lest you think the fortyish mother of three is just whiling away the hours with a self-made hobby, take note: Not only do Helen Webber designs command upwards of $600, they have been snatched up by an impressive list of clients throughout the U.S. and abroad some of whom have paid anywhere from $5,000 to $50,000 for her work.

The list includes prestigious businesses like the United Nuclear Corporation in Washington, D.C., and Parker Advertising in Los Angeles, and a score of leading banks such as Barclays in Beverly Hills, Pacific Union Bank and Trust in Menlo Park, and the Bank of California in Tokyo.

Nor is Helen Webber's work confined to corporate offices. Her tapestries also hang in the Holy Sepulchre Chapel in Hayward, Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Lesley College in Cambridge, Mass., the BART Station in Lafayette, the Jewish Home for the Aged in Houston, and a score of other sites, including most of the major home furnishing marts in the country. Among the latter is the Metropolitan showroom at San Francisco's Icehouse, where a dozen of her limited edition works are now displayed. (There are 26 different designs in her Limited Edition Series made in quantities of not more than 100.)

Even more remarkable than the number of custom designs she's been commissioned to do for public spaces is the fact that she's been in business only six years. Before Helen Webber Associates came into being, the New York City native was involved in a myriad of jobs that ranged from social worker in Gotham's slums to filmmaker and napkin designer. She even taught for a few years at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland.

Although she credits her alma mater with inspiring her first tapestries ("I went bananas when I did a school project on banners"), Ms. Webber did not start marketing her designs until long after graduation from RISD. The woman who entered graduate school at 35 when her children were grown and she was divorced became involved in art therapy and book illustration once she earned her master's degree. She also found herself "running around making contacts" in hopes of selling her art — watercolors, mono-prints, collage and a variety of other media. What she discovered, she's quick to point out, was "a fine arts world that was not so fine."

Despite the fact she achieved a certain amount of success — her work hung in many New England and New York City galleries and museums — Helen Webber was disenchanted with the art scene. The winner of a first prize in the Rhode Island Art Festival didn't like the fact that "everybody lived and died by the critics" and "galleries were only interested in selling."

But that's not only what was bothering Helen Webber. More and more she was becoming distressed by the second-class rating crafts were constantly receiving in fine arts circles. Creative expression is either art or it isn't, she argues, adding that just because an art work isn't conceptual or in the mainstream doesn't mean it's any less a work of art.

Small wonder Helen Webber escaped the East Coast for the West nearly a decade ago for personal reasons. "New York," she reflects, "is an incredibly tight, traditional, little town . . . it has no acceptance of new things . . . and stifles creativity. I really have a love-hate relationship with the place," she says.

Because she thought California was responsive to the tapestry idea, Ms. Webber began doing wall hangings for her own pleasure after she moved to the Bay Area. One of her personal pieces caught the eye of someone associated with the Islandia Hotel in San Diego and not long after she was commissioned to do a 28-foot tapestry for the site.

"I rented a space at the Oddfellows Hall in Berkeley to do the piece with the idea in mind that when it was done in a month's time I'd give the space up," Ms. Webber laughingly recalls. Instead, she decided to keep it on the logic if she had the space, the work would come in.

Not only did orders start materializing, so did the subsequent need for more help and larger quarters. Within two years, Helen Webber Associates was located in San Francisco with a labor force that now includes more than a dozen full-time workers described by their employer as ranging from "those with zero artistic talent to BFAs (bachelor of fine arts)."

"It's hard for artists to come here," Helen explains, "because they get no creative input . . . they're here to produce what I design."

So far, Helen's designs have been extremely diverse. She's done a 44-foot wide 11-panel tapestry with an early California theme, 12-foot high designs that were translated into mosaics for three columns at the Lafayette BART Station, and love scenes for a gambling casino. Of the latter she says, "they were suggestive enough to be interesting."

Does Ms. Webber have a personal favorite among her designs?

"No," she exclaims, "I enjoy whatever I'm doing at the moment."

But her most recent commission, she admits, did have more than the usual excitement connected with it. For the first time in her career, she was asked to create tapestries for a cruise ship, the TSS Festivale, which will feature eight of her works in public areas as well as 15 more in some staterooms. Passengers aboard the luxury liner which sails from Miami through the Caribbean also will find Helen Webber designs on their lunch and dinner menus, and in the gift shop where Plexiglas versions of her "Sea Songs" series will be for sale.

The shlp's owners were so taken with Helen and her work that they not only invited her to join them on the inaugural cruise, but they footed the bill for publication of a 12-page color brochure on her to be distributed to the first 30,000 voyagers.

"The shipping lines allowed me incredible freedom to design," Helen enthuses adding that it was one of the "biggest excitements" of her career.

Another big moment in her career occured last year when she organized Women in Design, a group comprised of women involved in all phases of designing ranging from graphics to interior design. "I never considered myself a feminist," she insists, "but I decided I had to do something about women in this business when I attended the Aspen Design Conference last year and found that while the practitioners were equally divided among the sexes, the 'stars' (people in control) were all men." Obviously her colleagues share her thoughts since chapters have sprung up throughout the country.

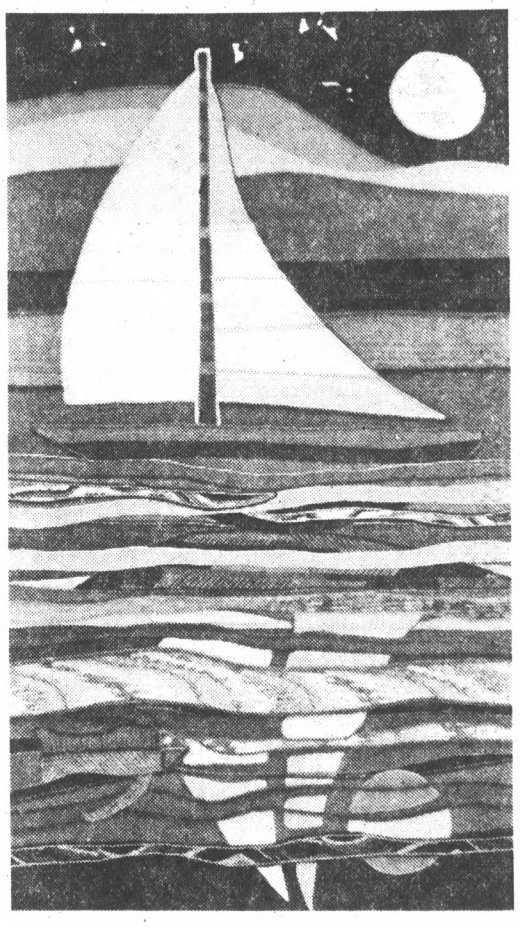
Helen, who starts each design with a cartoon-like full-color sketch, likes to punctuate some of her fabric creations with meaningful verse. Sometimes it's an excerpt from the Bible or Carl Sandburg, sometimes it's a poem specially written by her friend, Jim Petersen. And once in awhile it's a piece of her own prose like the following which was applied to the tapestry now hanging at Woodlands Development Center in Houston. It says:

"We grow young with growing things

And know each petal as it unfolds

Each tree we behold sings a song to our dreams."

Thirty-five scraps of material ranging from plush velvet to rough weave were blended to create this egret in fabric collage measuring 5 feet 6 inches by 6 feet six inches.



A PASSION FOR PURPLE

"Purple and orange — that's my trip," says tapestry designer Helen Webber who used many shades of both for this vibrant 3- by 5-foot wall hanging entitled "Reflections." Part of her limited edition series, the design also incorporates a variety of other colors. It retails for $1,090.

SEA SONGS

This silk screen graphic in purple and orange on a white background is one of Helen Webber's series of Sea Songs. It hangs in a stateroom on the cruise ship TSS Festivale where the remainder of the series are also on permanent display.

SNIP A LITTLE, PASTE A LITTLE

When Dennis Potter finishes pasting down the pieces of fabric he has cut to follow artist Helen Webber's design, he will be one step closer tc assembling the wall hanging Helen calls "Tiger." It measures 3 feet square and is done in earth tones that range from rust to wine to tiger orange. Part of the artist's Beasitary Series, it sells for $630.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Elaine Borelli and her co-workers at Helen Webber Associates spend their day painstakingly arranging the fabrics and yarns their employer has selected to interpret her collage. Their time is divided between limited edition wall hangings and special commissions. For her own satisfaction, Ms. Webber also does "personal statements" for her home or office.

YARN — THE FINAL TOUCH

Thick, rich-colored yarn provides the final touch for Ms. Webber's tapestries. After the fabrics that form the collage are applied to the backing, yarn is used to surround each piece and give an added dimension.

The Regent

One of Serramonte High School's important student government organizations is the Student Congress. Last week, representatives were selected in each first period class. I would like to congratulate all the students who were chosen. The Student Congress represents the Associated Student Body and serves as the principal's Student Advisory Committee. Each Student Congress representative attends all congress meetings and gives a report to their first period class on what is happening at Serramonte.

This year the Student Congress is being led by Diana Law, student body vice president. Student Congress representatives are Jeanne Friend, Gail Bougere, Eileen Kircopoulous, Sandy Alyila, Judith Duran, Capri McCoy, Laurie Schultz, Liz McNeil, Lisa Williams, Curtis Reynolds, Sara Mejia, Kenneth Maxi, Jacqueline Weber, Cindy Gonzales, Roma Manning, Julie Lopeland, Fernanco Hurtado, Johnathan Payne, Lisa Craven and Karma McDonald.

Alternates also were elected. Their job is to take the representative's place if he or she is absent. Student Congress alternates are Lisa Riker, Ron Cranshaw, Yvonne Lewis, Tony Lewis, Holly Cranshaw, Carolyn Wascom, Katherine Banks, Rhonda Holman, Denise Taylor, James Sinque, Cathy Flournoy, Tracy Wilson, Alberto Garcia, Janet Conser, Steve Nelson, Tami Wilson, Kurtis Wong, Oscar Bustamante, Scott Cuslidge and Jeannette Tevis. I would like to wish Diana and all the Student Congress representatives the best of luck for a successful year.

Serramonte has kept its tradition of having the best assemblies. Our first featured Jeffrey Hanson, the great escape artist, who performed many shocking and very amazing stunts. Students gasped in horror and disbelief when they saw Hanson put pins through his skin, escape from being tied up by two students and execute other tricks. I hope the future assemblies planned for this year will be as successful.

Nominations for Homecoming King, Queen, Prince and Princesses are being taken during the lunch period. The king and queen must be seniors. One prince and one princess will be elected from each class. Speaking of Homecoming, tickets for the dance will be on sale soon. The dance should be very exciting, so don't miss out.

Serramonte High has added two new counselors to the staff — Ms. Julie Jansen, the new junior counselor, and Ms. Carmen Mezzera, temporarily filling in for Ms. Haun.

Ms. Jansen is from Jefferson High, where she has been a counselor for the past 23 years. Ms. Jansen likes the students and teachers at Serramonte and says that the faculty at Serramonte is less rigid and younger than Jefferson's staff. I would like to welcome Ms. Jansen to Serramonte and I hope the students will get along very well with her.

Ms. Haun is expected back sometime next month from maternity leave. All seniors with program problems or other problems should see Ms. Mezzera.

For those of you who didn't know, Serramonte High is on an open campus schedule. Last year a school survey was taken on whether students at Serramonte wanted open campus. The reaction of most students was that it would be a good idea.

Acting on this information, our administration decided to give the go-ahead on a nine-week trial open campus. Open campus gives students more responsibility and freedom by being able to go off campus during the lunch period. I would like to remind all students that if you really want a permanent open campus, prove it. Keep the merchants and homeowners happy by not destroying their property.

Freshmen class officers will be elected today during first period. Best of luck to all candidates.

COMMENDED

Daly City Police Lt. Thomas Culley, left, recently received an official Certificate of Commendation from Chief David A. Hansen, right, for his efforts as coordinator of police activities in the recent labor dispute between the Jefferson Union High School District and striking members of the American Federation of Teachers. The commendation said Culley was praised by both sides in the strike for his handling of the situation.

Does Cat Lick Too Much?

By DR. BARNETT, DVM

Question: I have a white cat and he has a problem. He licks his front feet all the time and they are turning yellow-brown, like people's fingers who smoke cigarettes. Is there something wrong with his saliva to cause this? His back feet are okay because they are harder to lick. K.H.

Answer: This brownish discoloration is pretty common in both dogs and cats that lick themselves excessively. Probably there is nothing wrong with the saliva but something may be affecting the front feet and causing him to lick them. Have your veterinarian check his mouth (teeth and gums) and also his feet.

Question: Our dog Nan loves the water. We were on the Delta in a houseboat and she was in the water every chance she got. The thing that worries us is that she learned how to catch crayfish and ate them whole — shells and all. Is this good for her? These crayfish are about 3 to 4 inches long. L.H.

Answer: If possible, keep her away from crayfish — they might cause severe gastrointestinal problems.

Question: It's real scary to see your dog have a seizure. Ours has had three in the last month, but seems to come out of them alright. The last two times we caught her and held her in a towel until she came out of it. She's young and I guess will outgrow it. Are dog seizures the same as epileptic seizures in humans? Is there any medicine for it? L.P.

Answer: Dog have seizures for various reasons, including epilepsy. Your treatment of holding her in a towel until she finishes is correct (don't let her bite you since she won't recognize you). The idea that she will outgrow the problem because she is young is incorrect. You should have her examined to determine if treatment is indicated. If the condition is epilepsy, it may be possible to control the convulsions very nicely with medication.

Children's Program Registrations Open

The Daly City Recreation Department will have late fall programs for preschool children. Registration is being accepted at the recreation office.

Kindergym is for ages 3 to 5 years. Younger children will not be accepted. Elizabeth Santos is the instructor. The program is designed to develop motor skills and coordination through basic play and movement exploration. Coordination games will be included.

Classes are limited to 10 students and children are to wear playclothes and rubber-soled shoes. The five-week session will be Nov. 9 to Dec. 14. Class times are 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. or 10:30 to 11:15 a.m.

The Wind from the North
Is strong and proud,
And he pounds on my door
In a fashion loud —
One for life,
And two for death,
And November looses
A bitter breath.

—Anne Mary Lawler

From the department of interesting facts comes a bit of information. The ancient Saxons called our November Windmonath because it is the time when the wind blows in their homeland. Some of their fellow Germans, however, called it Blotmonath, or Bloodmonth, because it is a good time for slaughtering animals for winter food.

The Romans, on the other hand, wanted to name this month after Tiberius Caesar as they had named months for his predecessors; but that portly monarch declined the honor, remarking, "What will you do if you have 13 Caesars?" So the Romans settled for November, which means the ninth month. The name stuck even after Pope Gregory changed the calendar and the ninth month became the 11th.

Early in November is an excellent time to refer to a book entitled "Celebrations." Here is a unique treasury of holiday ideas featuring appetizing recipes, family games, gala decorations and easy craft activities. Between its covers Becky Stevens Cordello offers suggestions and information for twenty-five special occasions.

"Celebrations" (Butterick, $17.95) suggests that the traditional Thanksgiving feast should feature food that reflects the autumn season: parsnips, turnips, sweet potatoes, apple pie, raisins, mince pie, oysters or clams, nuts, cider to accompany your roast turkey or some other seasonal meat.

The author suggests during November, Americans sample old-fashioned Indian pudding and date and cranberry marmalade and Virginia chicken pie and cranberry tarts and cranberry frappe and candied pumpkin chips with pineapple juice and ginger.

For November why not entertain your brood by letting them prepare a Pilgrim centerpiece for your Thanksgiving table or decorate the house with what they can create from seasonal flowers, colorful leaves and beautiful fruits? Why not have a cornucopia in your house? "Celebrations" includes instructions for making such decorations.

The Gamesman

A Game Called 'Flinch'

By RICHARD C. MOON

Americans always have loved card games. Bridge is still the most popular game in the country. Bridge columns have large followings and participation in local tournaments continues to grow.

Forms of poker are played by nearly as many people. The world championship, played this year in Las Vegas, gained national attention and was the subject of extensive media coverage. Black Jack tables and Baccarat games always are crowded in gambling areas such as Las Vegas, Reno and Monte Carlo.

There also are many card games on the market that fall into the category of "non-card card games." That is, they aren't played with standard decks but, instead, are played with decks especially designed to the particular game. "Rook" and "Pit" are two of these. Another is "Flinch," which has been a favorite of children and adults since its invention in 1902 by George S. Parker himself, the founder of Parker Brothers.

Flinch is a numerical card game that can be played by two to eight people. The rules are simple enough to be understood by school children, yet adults also will find the game enjoyable. The deck contains 150 cards made up of 10 series, each numbered from one through 15.

The cards are laid out in several different piles: The game pile, consisting of 10 cards, dealt face down to each player; the hand piles are the next five cards dealt to each player — the stack; and the reserve piles.

Play begins, as in most card games, with the player to the left of the dealer. His objective is to dispose of as many cards as possible. But this must be done in numerical order. If he has a "one" card exposed, he plays it to the center of the table and turns up the next game card in his game pile. If that card is not a "one" he looks to his hand and plays any "one" he holds there. He then moves to the "twos" and so on until he no longer can play a card in sequence. Then he chooses any card from his hand and places it on the table face up to start a reserve pile.

Psychology and strategy can be employed when the "challenge" is used. On each turn players must, if possible, play first from the game pile. If they fail to do so, any opponent may call a "challenge." The player challenged must stop playing and draw a card from the game pile of the challenging opponent placing it on his own game pile. If the challenged player is correct, the challenger is penalized as above.

The player who first succeeds in playing all the cards in his game pile is the winner.

Flinch has much to recommend it. It is a stimulating and exciting game. It can be used as an aid in improving counting and simple math skills for young children. And it is compact for easy storage at home or when taken along on trips or vacations.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Back to cool, because it is that time of year. Autumn. Crisp air. Leaf tang. Shorter days. Hot foods. New clothes. Solid foods.

Ah, yes, as I draw in every invigorating breath — back to cool — I love it. I love warm comfortable foods that nestle in the bottom of my stomach. I really do. And on days like these, I want something physically comforting as well as taste satisfying. Unfortunately, the appetite that wanes with summer revives vengefully with the first snap of fall cool.

At one point last year an editor asked that I do an article on dieting on cold foods. She felt cold foods would keep dieters dieting more easily. I rebelled at first because of my own love of the cozy warmth, but I finally went along with the article, being convinced that there was a point there. If cold foods are less satisfying, less would be consumed. But it was already spring, and the first warm days had sent me scurrying for jellied madrilene at lunch.

Now, it's back to cool, and I have exercised my right to change my mind. Because I am convinced that he chill or warmth of the food have nothing to do with it. As one who chipped her tooth on a frozen brownie, smuggled from the freezer one moonlit 3 a.m., let me tell you that to get an eater into trouble, the food need only be food. It is not the temperature that counts.

Practice your fall cooking with a light, diet heart. Relish the recipes that bring warmth and a sensible number of calories to your table. Enjoy the foods of each season as the year progresses, without worrying, by following sound nutrition, and ignoring whims or flights of fancy.

NUT SPICE ROLLS

4 slices extra thin sliced bread
2 eggs
2/3 cup non-fat dry milk
2 teaspoon vanilla
4 teaspoons water
dash of salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder

Blend in blender. Pour into 6 pan-sprayed muffin cups.

TOPPING

Mix together 2 3 ounce Grapenuts, a dash of apple pie spice and ½ packet artificial sweetener. Sprinkle on top of muffins. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes.

Now there's a way to celebrate autumn. Munch into one of these warm and fragrant from the oven some breakfast. Try it with a steaming cup of diet hot chocolate for the ultimate in diet delight. Warm and diet — what a way to go back to cool.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

With bountiful supplies of all kinds of vegetables, it seems a good time to "cook-up" some vegetable main dishes. Here's one called Caponata that originated in Italy. First cousin to the French ratatouille, it uses eggplant and zucchini as the main ingredients. Hot with spaghetti, or cold as an appetizer or salad, the slightly sweet-sour taste is terrific.

The secret in this particular recipe is using a packaged spaghetti dinner which has all the basic ingredients in one box: spaghetti, a rich spaghetti sauce which adds extra flavor, plus grated cheese. Not only is this sauce delicious on spaghetti as a main dish, it's a real money saver too.

LA CAPONATA

1 large eggplant or 2 small ones, cut into 1-inch cubes
1 medium zucchini, sliced
½ cup olive or salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 medium onions, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 package complete spaghetti dinner with meat sauce
½ teaspoon basil
2 tablespoons capers, drained
2 tablespoons pine nuts or slivered alonds
8 pitted black olives, sliced
8 stuffed green olives, sliced
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup wine vinegar

Saute the one large (or two small) eggplant and one medium zucchini, a few pieces at a time in half-cup hot oil. Remove pieces as they are cooked and place in a flameproof casserole (heavy skillet). Sprinkle with half teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Now saute two medium onions until soft, but not brown. Add one clove garlic, minced, spaghetti sauce with meat, and half-teaspoon basil. Cover, simmer for 15 minutes. Add to vegetables in casserole.

Add two tablespoons capers, two tablespoons pine nuts or almonds, eight pitted black olives, eight stuffed green olives, two tablespoons sugar, and ¼-cup wine vinegar; cover and cook over low heat for 20 minutes. Capanota should be thick, but not too dry. If it gets a little too dry, add a little hot water.

Cook spaghetti according to package directions. Drain; toss with grated cheese from package. Serve hot capanota over cheesed spaghetti. Serves 6-8.

2 More Bodies Are Dumped in SM County

By VERN KROGH
and RICK SULLIVAN

The body of a 27-year-old San Francisco man, shot in the head, was found lying off Guadalupe Canyon Expressway on top of San Bruno Mountain Friday night.

The much-decomposed body of still another man was found earlier in the day in a deep ravine in the eastern part of Montara.

The two men are the ninth and tenth slaying victims found dumped in remote areas of the county since the beginning of the year. Only 12 days ago, a special homicide task force, headed by Sheriff's Lt. Brendan Maguire and Sgt. Gerald J. Restani, was set up to investigate the unprecedented wave of killings.

The body of the latest victim was tentatively identified from a suspended driver's license in his wallet, as John Raymond Hanson, 27, of 158 Sickles St., San Francisco. He was discovered at about 11 p.m. lying on the shoulder of the mountain road near Radio Road by a Daly City woman as she drove past. She telephoned Daly City police, who called members of the special task force and the sheriff's mobile crime lab.

Detectives said Hanson's wife was notified in San Francisco.

According to investigators, Hanson had apparently been shot once in the left side of his head. They reported the body of the 6-foot, 5-inch victim who weighed more than 200 pounds was still warm.

Casts of tire tracks near the body were made by crime lab technicians.

Detectives said there was no money in Hanson's wallet and robbery could have been a motive. They reported it appeared that it may have been narcotic related. They also reported the the killing was apparently not related to five of the murders which are believed connected to the homosexual community of San Francisco.

The greatly decomposed body of the other murder victim was found lying face up at the bottom of a ravine some 15 feet away from the intersection of Elm and Drake Streets in Montara by members of a county road crew at about 2 p.m. when they detected a strange odor, Lt. Richard Platt reported. He said it appeared to be related to the other homosexual killings, and all may have been committed by one mass killer.

The body was clad in blue jeans, a T-shirt and a blue jacket. The man wore hiking boots, although the other murder victims were barefoot, he said.

A cursory check of the body yielded no clues as to the cause of death, according to Platt. An autopsy was to be performed on both bodies today.

Most of the men have been strangled, although some have been shot, according to Maguire.

The task force was recently set up after the body of a tattooed man, estimated to be in his mid 20's, was discovered dumped off a 100 foot embankment off Tunitas Creek Road just west of Skyline Boulevard. The man apparently had been executed in gangland style, Maguire reported. He said the victim had apparently been forced to kneel along side the road and then was shot at the base of the skull at close range.

Although tattoos indicated he was a Navy veteran, a fingerprint check with the FBI in Washington failed to turn up any clues to his identity.

Two of the other homicide victims also have not been identified. One body found on Canada Road in Woodside and the killing of Christine Anderson, found garroted to death near Stage Road between Pescadero and El Granada, are not believed to be connected to the homosexual slayings.

Child of the Week

Billy needs a foster home for six months or longer. His parents are currently unable to provide a home for him due to personal and financial problems.

Eight-year-old Billy is a handsome, fair-skinned child of average proportions. He enjoys swimming, riding his bicycle, sports, bowling, and playing with other children. He draws well, and can spend hours assembling model cars and airplanes. Billy loves music and is learning to play the guitar.

Billy usually gets along well with other children, but will fight if provoked. He loves animals and is kind to them.

Billy is troubled with occasional nightmares. He complains of headaches and may need glasses. He has a fair appetite once he settles down at the table.

Help with schoolwork is indicated. Billy needs foster parents who can spend time with him and set limits on his behavior.

If you can provide a home for Billy, and you are healthy, responsible adults, call Marjorie Knoop, foster home recruiter, San Mateo County Department of Health and Welfare, Social Service Division, Foster Home Licensing Unit.

Burlingame Woman 'Pigeon Drop' Victim

A 78-year-old Burlingame widow, whose life savings were taken a week ago by two bunco artists operating the classic "pigeon drop," waited in vain for a week for her money to be returned before finally reporting the case to Redwood City police Thursday.

According to Redwood City Detective Pete McDonald, the woman, a retired county employee, was approached by a woman last Friday as she walked down Broadway. The woman told the victim she had just found a large amount of money and showed her a roll of money, wrapped up with betting receipts. The elderly woman described the woman as white, about 30, 5-feet, 1 or 2 with blonde hair.

A second woman, about 35 or 40, approached the pair and suggested that the three of them split the money. She said she would go to a nearby attorney to seek advice on how to do it.

When she returned, the second woman said she had been told by the attorney that they could turn the money over to the FBI, take it to the local police department or split it up. But, she said, the attorney suggested that the elderly woman turn over money to the other two "to show her good faith."

The pair then drove the woman to her home in Burlingame. When they determined she had no savings account but had funds in the county's credit union, they called a cab to take her to Redwood City to pick up her money.

The victim withdrew $6,800 from the credit union and took the cab back to Macy's in Hillsdale, where she was to meet the women. She said they took her money and promised they would return in a few minutes. She told McDonald she waited in Macy's until it closed, and then went home and waited for the two women all week.

They never returned, she reported to McDonald.

Permits for Bingo Due?

County Supervisor William Royer says he will recommend to his colleagues that an ordinance be enacted to allow mobile home parks and senior citizen organizations to apply for permits to operate bingo games.

The recommendation comes after a 71-year-old Moss Beach woman, Dorothy Simmons, was cited for a misdemeanor violation by offering bingo to some 60 residents of the El Granada Mobil Park.

Undercover agents of the district attorney and sheriff's offices cited Mrs. Simmons last Friday for illegally organizing a bingo game.

There is no provision in county ordinance today allowing senior citizen groups and mobile home parks to sponsor bingo games, even though state law gives counties the authority to enact such an ordinance.

WILLIAM K. JENNINGS
For San Mateo County
Superintendent of Schools

JENNINGS PLEDGES:

Equal Opportunity for a Quality Education!
My first concern as County Superintendent will be to see that every child receives an equal opportunity to attain a quality education, beginning with mastery of the basic skills reading, writing and mathematics.

Quality Education for Reasonable Cost!
It will be my responsibility to make sure that quality education is delivered at a reasonable cost to the taxpayers. One way this can be accomplished is through the sharing of costs and services by local school districts. In San Bruno we have done this successfully for the past five years.

First Hand Knowledge of Educational Programs!
I believe that I can bring to the county superintendency a first-hand knowledge of educational programs in general and the needs of local school districts in particular, and that I can offer some practical, workable approaches to strengthening programs and meeting needs.

New Leadership . . . is needed at the County Office of Education. Present county programs and services need to be re-evaluated. I will work for efficient use of the county schools' staff and facilities and examine all programs and services to cut waste and reduce costs.

Ram-blings

By STEVE KAUFMAN

Although many times Westmoor seems quiet, a close look reveals several activities giving the school an appearance of of being busy.

My good wishes to Mrs. Marie Delucci, the secretary to Vice Principal Jim Zylla. She was promoted to the principal's secretary at Terra Nova. Her many long hours of dedicated work for Westmoor will be remembered.

The community and band parents are invited to the first meeting of the school year of TEMPO, The (E) involved Music Parents Organization. This unique group is one of the most active parents' organizations at Westmoor, aside from the PTA. Throughout the year, they support members of the music department by raising money for trips and planning assisting in the various band activities.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Westmoor Band Room.

Officers will be elected, plans will be discussed and members will become acquainted with new "recruits." Coffee and cookies will be served.

While on the subject of music, congratulations to the Westmoor chapter of the Tri-M Society (Modern Music Masters for an excellent Octoberfest celebration Oct. 27. Students participating played various games, ate excellent food and enjoyed the spirit of this holiday.

A vote of thanks is in order for Westmoor's student government for an excellent Harvest Moon Disco Dance Oct. 28. This was the first dance of the school year, and many people enjoyed the popular mobile disco show.

All of the members of the senior class will assemble outside on the lawn Thursday for their collective senior photo. This always has proved to be a popular item, and each year students crowd around the display photo in the main office asking, "Where am I? Where am I? The orders for this picture will go on sale soon.

Congratulations to Student Body President Angela Rizzo, who was chosen as Student of the Month by the Exchange Club of Daly City.

As has been the case many years past, the Class of 1979 sold Flower-Grams to the school. This is a unique way to send flowers to your sweetheart. One pays for the number of flowers to be sent and is given an index card for each person to receive fowers. On the dy of the Homecoming, Nov. 9, flowers and cards will be delivered during first period.

Good luck to the Close-Up students going to Washington, D.C. They will be holding a garage sale on the first Saturday in December in an effort to raise money. If anyone has any articles they would like to donate, please contact George Simon at Westmoor.

Good luck to Westmoor's newest club, the Chess Club. Under the direction of President Jamie Guzman, this organization welcomes the beginning chess player as well as the advanced.

It's been a week of many meetings for many of Westmoor's clubs. The Atom's Family, Tri-M Society, Freshman class, Youth Elderly Service, Auto Club, Kennel Club, Art Club, Hermanos Latinos and BSU all got together for meetings.

Best of luck to all who took the Pre-Scholastic Aptitude Test. It was given in the cafeteria October 24.

Westmoor is proud to announce the return of lunchtime movies OCT. Oct. 31. This is an inexpensive way (75 cents) for students to see a recent motion picture. The movies show for three days. The first movie will star Bruce Lee in "Return of the Dragon," and will play Oct. 31 through Nov. 2.

Congratulations to the Girls' Swim Team for beating South San Francisco 98 to 35. Outstanding swimmers included Linda Rogers and Mitzi Bipes.

Westmoor's varsity football team is having a great season, recenty outplaying the South City Warriors, 38-19. The key scoring came from the Quarterback Tony Limutau and receiver Ken Baptista. Together, Ken caught seven passes for 185 yards, and Tony completed 9 of 17 passes for 200 yards. Defensively, Linemen Emile Prevost, Bob Johnson, Ed Jonoubeh and Don Piwaa yielded few yards to the Warriors while ends Pau Sangervasi and Albert LeDay made some outstanding plays. Keep it up!

Lioness Garage Sale; Sodality Breakfast

Lorianne Heath

"Fall finds" will be waiting for shoppers who visit the Daly City Host Lioness Club garage sale Saturday, according to Mrs. Virginia Tierney, the club's publicity chairwoman.

"Finds" of all kinds will be on display in the garage of the president, Mrs. Pat Hansen, 1210 Southgate, in the Westlake sector of Daly City.

The garage doors will swing wide at 10 a.m. and the sale continue until everything is sold (or until 5 p.m.). The sale is a benefit for the charitable organizations to which the Lionesses pledge support.

LAST CALL to make reservations for Sunday morning's Sodality Breakfast at Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church, Westlake.

Mrs. Robert Drucker, the spiritual director of the sodality at the church, urges all members who are planning to attend to contact Mrs. Joseph Potter. There is no charge for the breakfast, but the committee must have some idea about how many people are going to attend!

TUESDAY AT noon the members and friends of The Friends Outside chapter in this area will attend a luncheon at St. Francis Lutheran Church in San Francisco.

Reservations for the fund raising event are available for $3.50 at the Friends Outside office, 136 Church St., San Francisco.

MEMBERS OF the Pacifica Fifty Plus Club are collecting small used and broken electrical appliances which can be repaired and sold.

Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan of the club reports that the World War I veterans in the Menlo Park Veterans' Hospital appreciate donations of the applicanes which the men repair and sell or extra pocket money. The members of the Fifty-Plus club collect the items and transport them to the hospital as a part of the club's effort to help improve the quality of life for the men in the hospital.

Plans are being made for the 18th annual Christmas party for the men in The World War I unit. Good used men's clothing is being collected, along with packages of treats, cookies, cakes, jellies and candies, for distribution during the party.

Persons wishing to contribute may mark donations "for the veterans" and take them to a Fifty-Plus club gatherings on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at the Sharp Park branch of the public library between 10 a.m. and noon.

IF YOU have a sweet tooth that needs to be satisfied plan to drop by the Serramonte Mall on Saturday or Sunday and visit the special baked goods booth being sponsored by the Balboa Boosters Club.

Vickie Hackett, who is coordinating the sale, reports the baked items will go on sale at 10 a.m. on Saturday until 6 p.m. Sunday hours will be from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

THE MARY'S Help Hospital Guild Boutique will be launched with a champagne preview Nov. 16 at 7 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria.

Members of the boutique committee have worked for an entire year to ready all the craft items and holiday treats which will be offered during the sale.

SATURDAY, MEMBERS of the Daly City Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons will be up early and headed for the parking lot of Penney's-Westlake so they cano board a bus for a two day holiday in Reno.

Mrs. Doris Johnson is in charge of arrangements for the jaunt. The bus will leave the parking lot at 8 a.m. and return on Sunday at 9 p.m.

Tabbing Lingerers

By TERRY DAVENPORT

Those of us who attend many night meetings on a regular basis have some peculiar characteristics in common.

We are adept at finding our way to obscure meeting places in the dead of night and seldom drive with a low tank of gas.

We never sign up for evening adult ed classes and we miss most prime time TV programs.

We can be recognized by the dark circles under our eyes and our compulsive habit of gulping countless cups of coffee in the morning.

On a night that we don't have to attend a meeting, our idea of a good time is to stay home and catch some extra sleep.

As a reporter, I cover from two to four nights meetings every week. It didn't take me long to figure out which city councils and school boards have a habit of lingering past the midnight hour.

For example, the Pacifica City Council is known for depriving reporters of sleep, whereas the Millbrae City Council gets high marks for completing its business quickly.

The length of a meeting seems to be proportionate to the amount of tolerance that the chairman has for extraneous comments.

Being elected officials, city council members and school board trustees rarely tell their constituents to cut their remarks short. But most public bodies have developed subtle ways of discouraging long harangues by the public.

Jefferson Union High School District trustees, for instance, require every citizen who wants to talk to fill out a blue card and turn it in to the board. The board chairman then calls out those persons' names when it's time for them to speak.

Most city councils and school boards schedule the "open microphone" portion of their meeting near the end of the agenda, which usually means that an angry citizen is too tired to complain for very long.

The Jefferson Elementary School District represents the other extreme. Individuals sitting in the audience frequently add their 2 cents' worth without waiting for recognition by the chairman. The result is that JESD meetings often last quite late.

Most city councils and school boards are bolstered with cups of coffee as they wade through their business. A few, like the Millbrae City Council, offer coffee to the public. Others, like the Pacifica City Council, hide the coffee in a backroom that citizens aren't supposed to enter.

The Daly City City Council guarantees that no one else will get any coffee by having a staff member deliver cups only to the council members while their meeting is in progress. Tired as they may be, citizens are treated only to the vicarious pleasure of watching someone else slurp a cup of coffee.

Along with council members and school board trustees, reporters also become expert at gauging the length of a meeting by the number of special interest groups in the audience.

One will remark to the other, "This looks like a long one. There's Joe Blow of the Tse Tse Fly Preservation Society and John Q. Public of the Skyscarpers Development Association."

Unfortunately, we who attend pubic meetings are not an endangered breed. Aside from the council members, school board trustees and reporters who have to attend, there usually are only a handful of citizens who show up at night meetings.

I urge more people to join our ranks. You'd be surprised at how often a single citizen can persuade public officials to change their minds and spend their money differently.

But be sure to take your own coffee.

Bail-Out Funds Blamed for Jefferson Pay Hold Up

Processing salary raises for teachers in the Jefferson Union High School District stopped this week when the district received word from its legal advisors that paying the additional money could jeopardize the district's chances of receiving $7 million in state bail-out funds.

Superintendent Floyd Gonella said that the district made the decision to stop payment of the raises in concert with the teachers' union and upon the advice of the county district attorney's office and the county superintendent of schools.

Gonella said those legal advisors told the district that no raises may be paid to district employees until "some court of competent jurisdiction can make a ruling."

The district's legal advisors based their advice on a letter that County Superintendent J. Russell Kent received last week from the legal counsel of the state Department of Education, Thomas M. Griffin.

Griffin's letter, which attempts to spell out the rules school districts must follow in order to qualify for state bail-out money, states, "Salary increases . . . established after July 1, 1978, are prohibited even though negotiations for such increases may have commenced prior to that date."

JUHSD trustees gave teachers a 6½ percent raise on Sept. 30, retroactive to Feb. 1, as part of a contract that ended the teachers' 15-day strike.

At the time, Gonella explained that the raise did not violate the rules governing the state surplus dole-out, as outlined in Senate Bill 2212, because negotiations between the district and the teachers had been in progress since the previous fall and the raise was retroactive.

Gonella emphasized that the decision to hold up the payment of raises "should not be a shock to anyone, since this matter has been under discussion for the last few months."

He added, "I'm sure that no one, including the union, wants the district to jeopardize its block grant." That grant amounts to $7 million -- part of the $5 billion that the state Legislature provided to help school districts and cities overcome the effects of Proposition 13.

Gonella said the district will work with the teachers' union to try to get the issue of the legality of paying raises settled in favor of the teachers.

Since the other two unions in the district have "me, too" clauses in their contracts, entitling other district employees to the same raises teachers receive, any court decision will affect wages for all JUHSD employees.

Marcy Dunne Ballard, president of Local No. 1481 of the American Federation of Teachers, which represents teachers in the district, said Wednesday, "Dr. Gonella and I both agreed that we would mutually respond to the press by stating nothing of substance on the issue -- just that we are entering into a joint action to resolve it."

She noted, "The question is not if teachers will get a raise. The question is when."

Mrs. Ballard said she expects to hear soon on when the matter will be heard in court.

Jack Estes To Be Feted At Retirement

San Mateo County Assessor Jack Estes, retiring after 38 years of county service, will be honored by friends and colleagues at a dinner Nov. 18 at the Ramada Inn in Millbrae.

Estes, who has served on many state and national committees for the advancement of assessing practices and appraisal techniques, will be recognized by his staff, fellow assessors, and representatives from private and public sector during the evening's events.

Deadline for reservations is Nov. 8. Details are available from Estes' secretary, Winifred O'Halloran, 364-5600, ext. 2297

Proposed I-380 Alternates Draw Fire From San Bruno, SSF

State transportation officials were told Wednesday what North County residents think of the alternates to extending Interstate 380 into Pacifica — and apparently many people do not think too much of several of those alternates.

City officials and residents from San Bruno and South San Francisco said they wanted no part of any alternates that route Pacifica traffic through their cities.

San Bruno representatives said their city has its share of freeways and that it would resist new attempts to construct an expressway through Crestmoor Canyon.

The officials from South San Francisco reiterated that if Westborough Boulevard is designated as the link between Pacifica and I-280, the city would go to court in an attempt to stop it.

Pacifica's response was simply that residents there need a better, safer way to get inland, whether it is through San Bruno or South San Francisco.

State Department of Transportation representatives explained that because the $60 million needed to extend Interstate 380 into Pacifica is not available, it is looking at 16 non-freeway alternates.

Those alternates are divided into routes that would carry traffic from Pacifica to Skyline Boulevard and then those that would take traffic from Skyline Boulevard to Interstate 280.

Four plans have been presented for improving Sharp Park Road — a twisting dangerous road in central Pacifica that intersects with Westborough Bouelvard at Skyline Boulevard.

Other proposals for an east-west lateral in Pacifica are to extend Fassler Avenue or Linda Mar Boulevard or to construct an expressway along the original I-380 route.

To complement those alternates, four proposals have been drawn up for carrying traffic toward the airport, Bayshore Freeway and I-280.

Three of these suggestions involve San Bruno. They are to improve either San Bruno Avenue or Sneath Lane or to build an expressway through Crestmoor Canyon.

One proposed link also passes through South San Francisco, along Westborough Boulevard.

The cost of the alternates range from $2.2 million for one of the plans to improve Sharp Park Road to $43.9 million to extend Linda Mar Boulevard and align that new road with an expressway through San Bruno.

CalTrans said those estimates were made a year ago and have increased by about 15 percent since then.

San Bruno Mayor Dick Griffith said San Bruno has its share of freeways — which have dissected that city and created what he called an eyesore.

"The residents of San Bruno have long suffered from he intrusion of freeways," he said. "We're here to appeal for neighborly consideration and justice."

The mayor said there was "no doubt" that the council will fight any move to build an expressway across Crestmoor Canyon.

City Manager Gerry Minford said San Bruno understands Pacifica has a traffic problem, but "enough is enough," he said.

"Our people have paid their dues. We've had enough," Minford added.

Les Kelting, A San Bruno resident, said that city wants no part of proposals to carry traffic from Pacifica through San Bruno.

"We're not going to have it," he said. "We're damned tired of taking all the traffic for the Peninsula."

He said Sharp Park Road should be widened and that Westborough Boulevard should be the connecting route.

Sierra Club representative Ellie Larsen said the plan to re-construct Sharp Park Road to make it one way in each direction was the "superior" route.

No route that aligns itself with San Bruno across Sweeney Ridge should be considered, she said, because of the adverse effect on open space.

South San Francisco was represented by four City Council members and several city administrators, all saying that Westborough Boulevard was a poor place to add more traffic.

"I'd like everyone to know South San Francisco has its share of freeways, too," Councilwoman Roberta Teglia said.

Firemen May Live Greater Distance

Millbrae City Council members have voted to allow city firemen to live further away from the city and to increase benefits for the city's miscellaneous employees.

On a 4-1 vote Tuesday, the council approved the extension of the living radius requirement for fire personnel to include all of San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara and Alameda counties and portions of Contra Costa and Marin counties.

Under the new regulation, a Millbrae fireman may live as far north as Petaluma or as far south as Gilroy.

Councilwoman Mary Griffin cast the opposing vote. She later explained, "I don't want to limit the ability of anyone to get a job. I guess it's token protest that I want to keep our being a small town."

Acting City Administrator William Huston said the city staff plans to bring a similar recommendation regarding policemen in the near future.

In another action, the council unanimously agreed to adjust benefits for miscellaneous city employees by:

- Paying for increases in dental and health insurance premiums.
- Paying the employee's share of the medical insurance premium to a maximum of $6.85 per month for an employee with two or more dependents.
- Increasing compensation for standby duty by an amount that approximately represents the median amount paid by other cities in San Mateo County.

Huston told the council there currently are four vacant full-time city positions.

The council voted to establish eligibility lists for the vacant firefighter and recreation supervisor positions, to appoint Michael Carmody to the position of laboratory technician at a starting salary of $1,178 per month, and to look into different ways of filling a maintenance worker vacancy in the water department.

In other business:

- The council approved abandonment of a portion of Oak Street at the El Rancho Inn's request.

The land, which serves as an entrance to the hotel, will revert to ownership by the hotel.

- Four council members voted to endorse Proposition A, which approves the revision of the county charter.

Councilman Frank Cannizzaro abstained on the vote, explaining that he doesn't believe the council should take a position on such issues.

- The council unanimously accepted as complete a $1,842 contract for painting the Helen Drive water tank and a $24,773 contract for installing a sedimentation manifold in the wastewater treatment plant.

Language Unit Showcase Approval

After some second thoughts, the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees this week approved a contract for a Bell and Howell Demonstration Center at H. Pauline Brown School.

The board had turned down a similar request from Bell and Howell last month because the big electronics firm wanted to use the Language Master System in the Daly City school as a showcase in this area to attract new customers.

Fears of a constant stream of visitors disrupting classes led to board denial last month. Under the new plan, the visits would be scheduled so as not to disrupt classes, with demonstrations of the system to be when students aren't in the room, according to Larry Lyon, assistant superintendent for educational services.

The new system will be used by educationally handicapped students at Brown, Lyon said.

In other business, the board:

• Approved a contract for $67,645 in federal Emergency School Aid Act money for a computerized reading, writing and language basic skills program for some 500 students at George Washington and Colma intermediate schools, starting in November and with an option to renew. The contract went to Computer Assisted Instructional Services.

• Heard a report that the Mentally Gifted Minors program has been funded at $17,069 by the state for 218 identified gifted students in the district, a cut of two-thirds from last year and enough to provide two half-day teachers where three full-day teachers had been available before.

• Okayed a plan to buy two new vehicles, cars or trucks, per year if possible to replace those now wearing out.

Gene Venji, director of maintenance and operations, told the board he had investigated leasing costs and found buying vehicles to be considerably cheaper.

• Set 7 p.m. Nov. 1 for an executive session on negotiations with district teachers on the possibility of paying an agreed-to 5 per cent pay increase for this year. That raise was held up after by state restrictions imposed on local spending after passage of Proposition 13 in June.

430,611 Classified Ads

These are the record figures The Times' Classified Advertising Department achieved during 1977. More lines of Classified Advertising and more Classified Ads than any previous year in the 88-year history of The Times.

The reason these records were established in 1977 is simple, more and more people are learning that classified advertising really works. It worked for a record number of people last year and it can work for you this year. Just give us a call, we'll show you how.

Making your Classified Ad work is as easy as...

1 Include The Price...

Advertising price in an ad promises greater response. Research shows that 48% of the people will not respond to an ad unless the price is advertised. That's almost half of your prospective buyers eliminated. If your price is negotiable say so in your ad.

2 Don't Use Abbreviations...

Another way to kill results or turn off prospective buyers is to use abbreviations. WSW, PS, CBS, PB, AC, AT, WW may be clear to you, but maybe not to your buyers and most will not take the time to figure them out. One survey showed that 42% of readers didn't know what "WSW" tire meant.

3 Give Enough Information...

People today want all the information they can get before they buy. People want to know all the benefits of what they purchase. Not listing all you can in your ad will cause it to run longer with fewer results. Use brand names for extra pulling power.

4 Stay Near Your Phone...

If you're home all the time, including just a phone number in your ad is enough. If you work or can't be home, specify what hours you can be reached. Some people will never call back if they can't reach you the first time.

We have six San Mateo County newspapers to deliver your message and three conveniently located San Mateo County offices to serve you.

Le Pacini

If you haven't noticed — and if you haven't, congratulations — my picture has been changed. (See above, if you're willing.)

If you read The Post, the main difference is that in my previous photo I was in my Young Period. I'm about 12-13 years older in the above photo. If you are a Coastside Chronicle, San Bruno Herald, Recorder-Progress, et al, reader, the difference is that in the other photo, circa 1974, I was in my Fat Period. I'm 30 pounds lighter in the current picture.

I really don't know why the editors used different pictures over the same column in different newspapers, unless they fear that The Post had a young readership while the Coastside Chronicle, San Bruno Herald, et al, had a fat audience.

There were times when the Coastside Chronicle, et al, didn't run my picture with the column at all. I had always thought that it was due to special space or make-up problems, until one day an editor told me that it was the same thing as giving the readers an occasional coffee break.

Actually, I wish the editors had retained the photo which originally ran with this column when I started writing it in 1962, during my Young and Thin Period. But that picture literally was lost in the print shop one issue, which started the strange odyssey of my picture-changing.

This latest picture was not taken by the paper, editors citing Proposition 13 as a precedent. The picture never would have changed had it not been for my wife, my mother, my Aunt Josephine in Burlingame, and Cathy Cort of Redwood City. The former trio told me that my pictures were no longer adorable (which was a curious way of pointing out that I look exactly like my pictures). Cathy Cort really didn't care about my pictures one way or the other except as a professional challenge.

Cathy Cort, you see, is one of the proprietors of "The Picture People," a photo studio. Cathy has problems relating with people who aren't adorable, not being able to identify with them because she is, herself, adorable.

But as I said, she likes challenges and she does have heart, and so one day when I got tired of hearing from my wife and mother and Aunt Josephine about getting my picture changed, I called Cathy and told her that I needed my picture taken and that I had to look adorable.

Cathy told me that I had the wrong number, that I should call the Magic Castle in Los Angeles. But her professional pride got the best of her, and what you see above is the result of hours of darkroom work and a spent case of air brushes. If I were a Playboy centerfold and Cathy had worked on my touch-ups, my body would have to be surveyed to tell my head from my feet.

"There you are," said Cathy when she presented me with the proofs. "That's as adorable as you're ever going to get, and at that, I had to make a couple of special deals."

So whatever you do, don't ever destroy my picture. If you do, Ill become instantly old and fat for eternity.

It isn't unusual for a college quarterback to be switched to wide receiver in the pros. What may be unusual is that the 49ers have three such convertees — Freddie Solomon, Terry Le Count (now on the injured reserve list) and Kenny Harrison. Before he was put out on waivers, Gene Washington was a fourth former college QB.

Actually, Harrison and Washington were switched over in college. Washington had been an outstanding sophomore quarterback for Stanford, but was converted when a kid named Jim Plunkett arrived; although Washington, with his apparent built-in wide receiver qualities, might have been switched whether Plunkett had come onto the scene or not.

Harrison was another gifted athlete who had come to Southern Methodist as a high school quarterback and track star who could run the 40 in 4.3, long-jump better than 25 feet and high jump 6-8. But he had been recruited heavily as a QB, and so the Mustang coaches gave him a two-week look at that position in spring camp.

But SMU, that particular year, was heavy at QB and thin in wide receivers. SMU coaches felt Harrison was a natural to make the switch and told Harrison that he would have a chance at being a starter as a freshman if he were willing to make it.

Harrison accepted the switch and gained honorable mention All-American that freshman year, catching 29 passes for 542 yards and four TDs and becoming the first freshman to make All-Southwest Conference since Doak Walker.

Ironically, he was hard pressed to equal those figures during the next three years, because a coaching change brought in the basically non-passing wishbone offense, and, between serious injuries in his sophomore and senior years, Harrison caught only 24 more passes for 633 yards and just five more touchdowns. Still, he finished his SMU career ranking third on the all-time school lists with the numbers he had compiled.

Solomon and Le Count were switched in the pros, Freddie by the Colts and rookie Le Count, of course, by the 49ers.

Solomon, who attended Tampa, still holds the major college records for most yards rushing by a quarterback in a season (1,300, 1974), most yards rushing in a career (3,299, 1971-74), and most yards averaged per game in one season (118.2, 1974). That averaged out to 6.7 yards per average carry in 1974, and 5.9 yards per carry for Solomon's collegiate career.

Last year at Florida, Le Count was the third leading rusher among the nation's quarterbacks, gaining 628 yards.

Why do former college quarterbacks so often make for such outstanding pro wide receivers?

Le Count feels it's because the converted wide receivers have a special affinity for the problems of quarterbacks, having been there.

"As a college quarterback," says Le Count, "you learn to read defenses, which you must do as a wide receiver, and a wide receiver who is a former quarterback also knows better what the quarterback wants him to do. And you put a little more effort into your work, because you know how you appreciated that extra effort from your receivers when you were a quarterback.

"Also, because most QB's in college run the veer and wishbone type of offenses, they have to have good speed, and because they're handling the ball a lot they have to have good hands — all qualities of good receivers.

"Let's face it. If I can make my quarterback successful, he's going to make me look successful."

Le Count, needless to say, already looks successful. He apparently was coming into his own in the Houston game when he went out for the season with an arm injury. General manager Joe Thomas, in fact, thinks that Le Count's injury hurt the 49ers more than any other injury they've had this season, including Wilbur Jackson's.

He claims that it had a chilling effect on quarterback Steve DeBerg, who had come to the point that he had so much confidence in Le Count that he was going to Terry in the tough situations.

Rams Ramble, Coach Grumbles

By JAY LEWENSTEIN

What does it take to get a smile out of Westmoor High football coach Pete Matisi?

After crushing Oceana Friday 35-14, his club is in a three-way tie for first place in the North Peninsula League at 3-1. But Matisi is far from satisfied.

"We were lucky to win this one. After coming of such a big win last week against South San Francisco, we seemed lackadasical," Matisi stated. "We got off to a very slow start because we were totally unorganized. I almost benched (star quarterback Tony) Limutau because of it."

It was a good thing for the Rams that he didn't. Limutau, the County's leading offensive player, was able to revive the Rams from an early deficit and blow the game wide open with a variety of exciting running and passing plays.

But it wasn't easy. For the second week in a row, Westmoor's highly potent offense was nearly nullified by untimely penalties and fumbles.

A strong Ram pass rush and a stingy secondary prevented Oceana from engineering a successful scoring drive until quarterback John Brown capitalized on a Westmoor fumble late in the fourth quarter.

The stocky junior, who passed for 213 yards on the day, hit Mark Page for the tally. The only other shark score was a Brown-to-Tony Kerlagen 63-yard bomb early in the first half.

Led by Limutau and fullback Ralph Apostolos, Westmoor wasted no time in turning the game around in the second half after going into intermission trailing 7-6. Limutau marched his squad 70 yards in 10 plays after the opening kickoff with Apostolos carrying for the go-ahead score.

Later, Limutau connected with Bob Pittman on a seven-yard out pattern for a touchdown.

Serramonte Juggling Act

Each week Serramonte High football coach Ken Cook faces a monumental and unlikely challenge — assembling a team.

Injuries, illnesses and scholastic suspensions have forced the Regent coach to make personnel and position adjustments on offense and defense before each North Peninsula League contest.

Despite missing four players because of the flu and several others to injuries, Cook put the pieces remaining in the right combination Friday as the Regents played their best game of the year in whipping previously-unbeaten, first-place El Camino, 14-6.

"With all the injuries we've had and the flu this week, it would be really interesting to see what we could do if we had the whole team healthy for one week," Cook noted after Serramonte moved into a fourth-place tie with El Camino at 2-1-1.

The Regents limited El Camino's offense to a net 71 yards. The NPL's leading defense against the run effectively shut down the Colt option, holding EC to minus one yard rushing.

"We felt the key to stopping El Camino was stopping Ruzek (EC quarterback Roger). He's 80 percent of their offense and if we held him, we felt we would win," Cook said.

Ruzek, playing despite a nerve infection in his eye which required special goggles for protection, was sacked six times by the Serramonte defense for losses of 56 yards, and gained only four yards rushing.

Serramonte opened the scoring in the first quarter when quarterback Doug Cranshaw hit wide receiver Joe Nobles on a fly pattern for a 49-yard touchdown pass.

A Ruzek-to-wide-receiver-John Casey completion set up Jeff Pettigrew's third-quarter 39 yard field goal. A Serramonte fumble enabled Ruzek, who was knocked out three times in the game, to notch EC's second score, a 45-yard field goal. (Yes, the Colts have two field goal kickers; woozy Ruzek needed a backup.)

With the Colts on the verge of a comeback, the Regent defense went to work. Tackle Poi Tuimvave ripped Ruzek as he was attempting to pass and linebacker T. J. Neuner, who also had two sacks, recovered the loose ball.

Tony Hale, the last-minute Regent running back choice, bolted 36 yards off tackle to set up Cranshaw's seven-yard touchdown run, which gave Serramonte the final 14-6 margin.

15-Year Drought Ends

Jeff Beats SSF

Jefferson High fullback Richard Rodgers will be celebrating his birthday in style today.

Friday in Daly City, the junior sensation had perhaps the most awesome statistical performance in the County this season, as Jeff demoralized South City 40-13.

The victory is Jeff's first over South City since 1962. This was the 60th renewal of a rivalry which began in 1924. (SSF still leads the series 37-18-5.)

More importantly, the win gives Jeff a one-third share of the North Peninsula League lead. The Indians are currently 3-1, as are Terra Nova and Westmoor.

Rodgers was devastating as a runner and a passer (on fullback options). He gained 124 yards on 17 carries and had a 25-yard touchdown on the ground, and completed six of eight pass attempts for 161 yards and three TDs.

Jeff rolled up 495 yards total against SSF — 266 on the ground and 229 in the air.

Jeff's point total of 40 was the most produced in a single game since Jack Burgett took over the head coaching position five years ago.

The loss was the worst defeat of the season (and in many years) for SSF. The Warriors appeared to be very uninspired throughout the contest.

A notable exception was fullback Jerry Pirillo who gained 104 yards on eight carries, including a 74-yard TD run. The bullish Pirillo broke three tackles on the scoring gallop.

Jeff is now 4-3-0 overall; SSF is 0-3-1 in league and 2-4-1 overall.

Errors Cost CSM

It just wasn't in the cards.

Or perhaps College of San Mateo football coach Bill Dickey said it better. "They did what they had to when they had to."

What De Anza had to do was take advantage of Bulldog mistakes, and the Dons did for a heart-stopping, nail-biting 19-17 win over previously unbeaten CSM before a huge crowd on the San Mateo hilltop Saturday.

De Anza is now the Golden Gate Conference leader at 6-0, 8-0 overall. The Dons can afford a loss in their final two games with Chabot and Laney and tie with CSM (if the latter wins its final three). But DA would get the Bay Bowl berth because of its win over CSM.

The loss was a bitter pill for CSM to swallow, but the 'Dogs simply made too many mistakes, especially in the second half, when De Anza rallied from a 17-7 deficit.

The Bulldogs took the second-half kickoff 62 yards in nine plays for a TD, with quarterback Claudio Cipolla connecting with halfback Dennis Cowen on a 12-yard screen pass. The PAT made it 17-7 CSM with 12:07 left in the third quarter.

That would be the last time CSM penetrated the De Anza 40, except for its last ditch desperation drive.

De Anza finally scored with 13:14 left in the game on a three-yard run by halfback Rich Hersey. The Dons tried a fake on the PAT, but CSM's Denis Murray nailed the holder before he could unleash his pass. That made it 17-13.

Things looked very safe, especially after Murray recovered a Don fumble on the CSM 22 with 3:15 left. The Bulldogs couldn't move the ball though, and were hurt even more when Cipolla was sacked on third down.

A short punt and a nine-yard return moved the ball to the CSM 31. But a senseless personal foul penalty against CSM put the ball on the 15. It was just one of the 14 penalties CSM incurred for 181 yards.

Linebackers Craig Nicolopoulos and Vinny Roche stopped Hersey for just two yards on first down. DA quarterback Tyce Ferguson threw incomplete on second down. He was faced with a third-and-eight.

Ferguson went back to pass and sidestepped a couple of Bulldog rushers, looking into the left corner of the end zone. But his receiver was covered. He looked back right and must have been shocked at what he saw.

Hersey was all alone on about the two yard-line. The 6-2, 200-pound soph from Elgin, Ill., caught the ball and backed into the end zone for the go-ahead score with just 1:05 left in the game.

On the extra-point De Anza foolishly went for two points and the try, a pitch-out to Hersey, was stopped woefully short by linebacker Mike Barrett.

What had happened on the coverage on the TD which left Hersey so wide open?

Dickey explained. "We were in a weak-side linebacker stunt, and we had a linebacker assigned to take Hersey out of the backfield. He went for the play-take and Hersey was all alone."

The decision to not take the safe one-point extra point and gamble for two, nearly came back to haunt De Anza. And it probably should have.

CSM let the kickoff go out of the end zone and took the ball on the 20. Cipolla hit Cowen, who managed to get out of bounds, with a nine-yard pass. That saved a timeout, of which CSM only had one left.

Cipolla then threw long, but it was incomplete. He found Cowen for nine-yards again. But then he was sacked by linebacker Travis McNulty for a loss of eight. His next pass was incomplete with 0:34 left.

Fullback Steve Bradford took a screen pass for 18 yards down to the CSM 48. Cipolla then hit Perry Parmelee with a 12-yard toss to the DA 40. But only 0:09 remained.

Cipolla went back again and threw it as far as he could, looking deep for Dennis Haskins, subbing for an injured John Smith. The pass was perfectly thrown. Haskins tried to get to the ball, but the De Anza defender wasn't looking for the ball and was called for pass interference for face-guarding Haskins, giving CSM the ball on the two.

There was no time left on the clock. But the rules say that the game can't end on a defensive penalty. So CSM could run one more play.

Dickey elected to go for a field goal, a sore spot with his team this year. Mark Ferguson had made both of his extra points and his only field goal attempt earlier (from 23 yards).

This attempt would be from the nine, or a 19-yard field goal try. De Anza called a timeout to rattle him. Perhaps it did.

The snap appeared good, as did the hold. But the kick missed badly to the left from the right hashmarks.

"I had told the kids this week that I thought a field goal with one or two seconds left just might win this game," said Dickey. "But you don't want it to come down to the last play and put all the pressure on one kid.

"You can't put all the blame on Mark; we had a lot of chances before that. We just didn't play good offensively in the first quarter. We had numerous opportunities, but all kinds of penalties and breakdowns hurt us when it looked like we could move the ball."

Camino Extends String

San Mateo High's girls' tennis team put forth a strong effort against Burlingame Thursday, but were unable to overcome the undefeated Panthers and lost 8-1.

Linda Gates, Burlingame's top player, beat Jenny Mullery, 6-2, 6-2, for her 10th win in straight sets, as did teammate Trina Lee who downed Mary Atkinson, 6-3, 6-3. San Mateo's victory came from a Panther default in the third doubles match.

Aragon brought its second-place record to 8-2 Thursday by smashing Mills, 7-2. The Dons' Kelly Simons scored a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Lynne Varesco. In the second doubles match, Debbie Delbon and Beth O'Conner defeated Cathy Chakos and Juli Fong, 6-3, 6-4, for one of the Vikes wins.

Hillsdale stomped the visiting Capuchino Mustangs, 7-2. The fourth singles match proved to be very close as the Knights' Pat Barret edged Eileen Keleher, 4-6, 7-6, 7-6.

Skyline Cross Country Team Stays Unbeaten

The Skyline College men's cross country team wound up an undefeated Coast Conference dual meet season with an easy 16-47 victory over visiting Cabrillo Friday on the Crystal Springs Course.

The Trojan women also won easily over the Seahawks, 20-38, to finish with just a single loss (to Monterey Peninsula).

Both Skyline teams have clinched spots in the Northern California championships on the same Belmont course two weeks from today, but will first compete in the Coast Conference Championships next Saturday, also at Crystal Springs.

Skyline's Morijo Connally remained undefeated in JC women's competition with an easy 19:34 victory over 5,000 meters Friday — nearly two minutes ahead of teammate Nori Grossman (21:32). Skyline took six of the top eight spots.

Revenge For TN Gridders

Terra Nova High's football players took a couple of bitter memories into their North Peninsula League game against host Half Moon Bay Friday.

As a result, HMB took a 35-15 loss as Terra Nova rose into a three-way tie for first place in the wide-open NPL race.

Tiger quarterback Joe Belli, who connected on six of 13 passes for 95 yards and two touchdowns, said he and his teammates remembered last year's oh-so-narrow loss to Half Moon Bay — which directly cost Terra Nova the title (although the Tigers did receive the at-large berth in the CCS Region I playoffs).

Thanks to Terra Nova's defensive front four, however, it didn't. The Tigers controlled the line of scrimmage when HMB had possession, yielding a grand total of two yards — yes, that's one, two — on the ground and sacking Cougar quarterback Pat Donovan five times for 150 yards lost.

Donovan did a great job under the circumstances, completing half of his 26 passes for 177 yards and a touchdown.

With Terra Nova leading 14-0, HMB was still conceivably in the game midway through the third quarter. But Tiger receiver Don Parrez took the Cougars out of it when he made an excellent lunging catch of a Belli spiral in the left side of the end zone for a 19-yard touchdown pass.

South San Francisco Historian

Brides, Bootleggers And Muddy Mansions

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

In the early 1900s there were 29 bars and one church in South San Francisco.

Rumor also has it that a bordello operated across the street from the police station and that some of the city's most prominent families were involved in bootlegging.

These and other tidbits about South San Francisco's interesting past come from city historian Linda Kauffman-Linn, who has been doing her job for the past 11 years.

She compares her job to that of a sleuth, as she pores over old newspaper clippings and thousands of photographs. She takes detailed notes about all her research and has written a book on the city's history.

One of her favorite aspects of the job is comparing fact to fiction.

The roots of the city have been traced back to the 1850s, when the Lux Mansion was built between what is now Chestnut and Oak avenues. For many years it was assumed that the stately home had been covered with mud and had just sunk out of sight. However, the city historian has learned that was not the case at all.

After the original owners died, the home had many uses, including being the site of the breaking ground for horses being sent to China. A flood eventually washed out the bottom floor and the top floor was torn down and the wood used to build a garage.

A great source of information for her is the city's picture collection.

"You see a picture and there're clues in it," she said. "So, you're like a detective."

Some clues she looks for are the presence of telephone poles, parking meters and cars.

After getting an overall perspective of the city's history, Mrs. Kauffman-Linn said she has gone back for a second, more detailed look.

Starting with the year 1895, she has researched the minutest of details. But there are some gaps in her note-taking. One of those gaps concerns greyhound racing in the 1930s; another is information about the Prohibition era.

"I would love to talk to someone who would feel free to talk about it," Mrs. Kauffman-Linn said of the bootlegging days.

In her research, she has come to know a lot about the pioneer families — so much so that she would have an emotional reaction to the triumphs and tragedies of their lives.

One story she recalls is that of the young bride who dyed her shoes on her wedding day. She died soon after because the dye penetrated her feet and apparently poisoned her.

As one reviews the history of South San Francisco, an obvious notation is the fact that so many Italians settled here. The city historian said the young Italian men were sent to the United States to pursue a better way of life and settled in South San Francisco because of good job prospects and available housing.

In the early 1920s, the Italians became involved in politics when about half of the population was Italian. That interest in politics has continued since then.

When asked to reflect on what she considers to be the most outstanding feature of South San Francisco's history, the historian said Colma Creek comes to mind.

Every year the town flooded, she said, and every year "man really tried to tame it."

Rather than learning to live with the creek (which was large enough for barges to float down), Mrs. Kauffman-Linn said, time was wasted in a struggle to contain it.

The city historian noted that although she is becoming more involved with a business of her own, she cannot bear the thought of not finishing her catalog of South San Francisco's past.

"I am so tied up with the history," she said, "it would be hard for me to quit. I still have a sense that there is so much undone."

Health Plan Designed to Rival Kaiser

A county-wide pre-paid health plan developed by four local hospitals and hundreds of private physicians who hope to lure patients away from an "expanding" Kaiser Permanente Foundation was unveiled Thursday in Redwood City.

Billed as the first health plan of its kind on the Peninsula, Bay Pacific Health Plan, Inc., promises to lower health care costs, offer comprehensive services and provide a wide choice of local doctors and hospitals.

According to Dr. Richard Levy, president of the plan, a family of three or more would be charged a flat fee of $119 monthly to enroll. The charge would be less for couples and singles.

The fee would entitle the subscriber to choose any physician in San Mateo County who is a member of the new health plan and any one of four participating hospitals for medical attention.

The hospitals are Sequoia in Redwood City, Mills in San Mateo, Peninsula in Burlingame and Mary's Help in Daly City.

Levy said that, so far, more than 200 physicians are enrolled in the plan. He said he believes doctor enrollment eventually will reach 300.

The monthly charge would cover the cost of almost all medical care — doctor's visits, treatments, diagnostic tests, hospital and surgical care, home visits, maternity and psychiatric counseling. The plan would not cover dental care or any kind of cosmetic surgery.

Levy said there would be no "major" deductibles nor any additional costs for care over and above the monthly fee. The only exception, he noted, would be what he called a "co-payment" demand of perhaps $3 for a visit to a doctor's office.

"This co-payment," said Levy, "is there to make sure patients seek care when they believe it's appropriate."

Plan subscribers, according to Levy, would be allowed to select their own "primary physician," who would keep their medical records and coordinate all other aspects of health care needs.

The primary physician would be able to refer patients enrolled in the plan to specialists and to various hospital services, the cost of which would be included in the monthly charge.

The plan fee would be billed monthly whether or not a patient used physician services.

Unlike Blue Cross, Levy said, Bay Pacific would cover nearly all costs of medical attention and would "allow a member to predict and to budget medical costs for the entire year."

And unlike Kaiser, the president added, "The new plan would allow subscribers to select and to change a doctor at will and to receive treatment in a doctor's office."

Stephen Schwartz, executive vice director of the plan, claimed that the monthly fee for Bay Pacific is below that currently charged by most conventional insurance carriers and about 10 percent higher than Kaiser.

Schwartz also stressed that the new plan would promote preventative medicine and "increased out-patient care rather than more costly medical care."

According to Levy, Bay Pacific will be offered to county residents through employers sometime in late January or early February. During the beginning phases, the plan will not be made available to individuals.

Schwartz said the plan needs 16,000 subscribers to break even.

"This plan puts San Mateo County in the forefront of developing a means in which health care is provided in the United States," said Levy.

"We hope to provide efficient . . . and personal service to the residents of San Mateo County in a way that preserves freedom of choice."

Schwartz noted that San Mateo will join some 160 other "health maintenance organizations" nationwide offering similar medical plans.

Initial funding for Bay Pacific was derived from the county Individual Practice Association, comprised of about 200 physicians, and from the four hospitals.

Schwartz said that his staff, headquartered in San Mateo, is applying for a multi-million dollar federal grant to finance the plan through its initial phases.

Officers of the Bay Pacific, besides Levy, include Richard Daniels, administrator of Sequoia Hospital, vice president; Dr. M. Patrick O'Meara, a Redwood City internist, secretary; and Charles Mason, Peninsula Hospital administrator, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors include: Rex Chase, executive director at Mary's Help Hospital; Robert Burness, executive vice president at Mills Hospital; Dr. Gerald Kenner, orthopedist; Robert Gilmore, business manager of the county Building Trades Council; Heath Wakelee, vice president of personnel at Ampex Corporation; Dan Kain, vice president of employee benefits at United Airlines; and Henry Bostwick Jr., general manager of the county Development Association.

Airport Safety Suggestions Told

By GEORGE GOLDING

Dozens of suggestions for improving airport safety in California — proposals that often conflicted with each other — were heard Thursday in an all-day hearing of state Senator Milton Marks Committee on Local Government.

The hearing was held at San Francisco International Airport and attracted advocates of banning small planes from large airfields, opponents of airport noise, representatives of most airport managements in the San Francisco Bay Area, several members of the public, and federal aviation administration officials.

Testimony was punctuated with horror stories of mid-air collisions that almost happened and potentials for disaster every minute.

Most telling among the doomsday yarns were a mid-day report of a small jet clipping a larger one parked at Los Angeles International Airport early Thursday, and a description of a a near-collision over San Diego only four days after the Sept. 25 tragedy.

Among the suggestions for improving airport safety were these:

Forbid training flights at major airports, ban small planes from large airports, forbid slow aircraft from flying in the same path as fast planes, add further restrictions on pilot experience and aircraft equipment required before flight into major air terminal areas;

Reduce flights of airlines at night in order to lessen noise impact on local citizens and reduce crash hazards, restrict building heights around airports, create a state agency with zoning power to control development around airports;

Add flashing "strobe lights" to airplanes, add collision avoidance equipment to airplanes, improve radar surveillance equipment on airports, and urge pilots to give greater atten-

Mauro Lauded For Bus Gains Bay SamTrans

SamTrans manager John Mauro won applause from the usually calm San Mateo County Regional Planning Committee Thursday night with an enthusiastic report on improvements in bus service the past three years.

"Things are moving and very exciting," he said at the end of his 20-minute talk, and his enthusiasm was followed by applause.

Mauro told the Regional Planning Committee that SamTrans service has tripled in the past three years and that he expects another doubling or tripling in the next few years.

The transportation district has plans for improving Southern Pacific service, plans for improving neighborhood bus service, and other plans it is not yet willing to talk about, he said.

And, unless SamTrans loses its present state financial support, the improvements can be made without costing the San Mateo County taxpayer any increase in tax rates, he said.

Mauro said that next year he expects SamTrans to be providing school bus service for virtually every district in the county. He is planning now for that service, he said, and talking with school officials about what is needed.

District officials also see great improvements coming in bus service to San Francisco International Airport.

Mauro said he would like to replace "all the little buses running around the airport" with one set of SamTrans buses which would not only reduce airport traffic, but improve service.

In another report to the Regional Planning Committee, county planning aide Don Graig outlined the Local Coastal Plan being prepared as part of the state's overall shoreline plan.

Craig said the plan includes 14 parts, ranging from access to the beach, to recreation and visitor facilities, to preservation of sensitive habitats.

Following a series of citizen workshops, he said, first drafts of the proposed plan will go to the county Board of Supervisors in May or June.

Approval by the state is possible as early as next August or September, he said.

San Mateo County is farther ahead with its coastal planning than any other county in California, said Craig.

Albert Teglia, committee member from Daly City, said his subcommittee on litter control will have a proposed "cooperative county litter control program" ready for the RPC's next meeting, Nov. 30.

Teglia said his group is not ready to recommend a beverage container deposit law, as recently enacted in Marin County.

RPC Chairman George Feliz suggested the litter control subcommittee might be asked to tackle that task as soon as the cooperative litter control job is completed.

Teglia said his subcommittee will probably recommend a county-wide litter control program employing one or more litter control officers and a litter control coordinator.

He said weekend litter problems as suffered around Half Moon Bay and its beaches, suggest a county litter control officer is needed.

Art Lepore, chairman of the Airport Land Use Committee of RPC, invited every one to a "citizen involvement workshop" Nov. 16 at the Burlingame Hyatt House regarding plans for San Francisco International Airport.

He said progress in communications and interchange of information between local communities and the airport is better than ever before.

Lepore said a county report urging a lower noise standard than that set by the state will be urged upon the joint San Mateo County-San Francisco County airport study board, Oct. 30.

That goal, he said, should be a reduction in noise to a rating described as "60 CNEL" — a community noise exposure level averaging no higher than 60 decibels. Current state standards set 65 CNEL as the goal.

tion to "see and be seen" techniques.

Suggestions for creating a state air safety agency, and for a state airport land use zoning agency, were countered with suggestions that the federal government be given power to control all air flights at all times.

Senators Milton Marks, Rose Ann Vuich, and Robert Beverly heard one man demand no restrictions on smallplane flights into large airports — and admit that a disaster involving a small aircraft and a large one "could be sitting out there over the San Mateo bridge this very minute."

They heard people say that both planes involved in the San Diego crash were under positive control of the FAA at the time, and several people asked for increased control of aircraft by the FAA as a means of improving safety.

Most prominent among the suggestions — from those who fly or operate airports — was the proposal that state and federal airport funds be spent to install instrument landing equipment at training airfields away from major air terminals.

From airport neighbors, suggestions concentrated on reducing impacts such as noise, air pollution, and the possibility of a loaded airliner crashing into homes. Night curfews, reduction in numbers of air flights, and restrictions on air activity in bad weather, were methods urged.

Marks said no immediate decision would come out of the committee hearing, which drew approximately 45 people from points as distant as San Diego.

He said the committee would review all suggestions and report to the full State Senate when it reconvenes.

Until then, he said, he would not be able to say what steps might be taken to improve air safety in California.

Bodies

man III, 26, and two other unidentified males are believed connected, according to investigators.

Autopsies have revealed that Oller, Young and Goodman died of strangulation. Because of the advanced decomposition of two other bodies, pathological examinations were unable to determine the cause of death, although members of the task force belived they, too, were strangled.

Last March still another body was found off an isolated cul de sac near Huddard Park in Woodside. The head of the body was wrapped in a plastic bag.

Oller wore only a pair of jeans.

Two weeks later Young's body was found dumped off Purisma Creek Road in the south Coast. He, too, wore only jeans.

Last June the decomposed remains of the other two men, estimated to be in their early 20's, were found lying in Tunitas Creek east of Highway 1. They, too, wore only jeans.

And on Oct. 6, Goodman's body was found dumped near where the previous two corpses were found. He wore only jeans and a T-shirt and had been strangled.

Not Exactly a Ringing Endorsement

A new plan to provide animal control services in the county during the coming year received only tepid endorsement Friday night by the San Mateo County Council of Mayors.

The plan, hammered out by county supervisors, city officials and representatives of the Peninsula Humane Society, calls for increased funding for the Society beginning Jan. 1, 1979. The operating funds for animal control were drastically cut by the supervisors in the wake of the passage of Proposition 13 in June.

The new plan provides that $853,000 be appropriated to the humane society this year and more than $1 million next year. Much of the money would be raised by increased animal license fees, increased impound fees and improved collection of fines for violations of animal control ordinances. The cities and county would share additional costs.

The vote by the Council of Mayors to endorse the plan was 10-8.

Richard Ward, executive director of the humane society, and George Riley, director of the county department of community services, appeared before the mayors' meeting in Redwood City Friday night to outline the plan.

Objections by the dissenting mayors were not so much on the plan itself but on the fact that many hadn't had time to sufficiently review it before voting. Others said they detected a "take it or leave it" attitude on the part of the board of supervisors and that they were tired of having the board and other agencies try to push them around.

In past meetings of the Council of Mayors, speakers have been less than subtle about their power to do what they want to the cities despite local officials' protests.

These speakers have included spokesmen for the Association of Bay Area Governments, which is the coordinating agency for the regional environmental protection plan, who told the mayors, "If you don't go along with the plan, we'll do it for you." A spokesman for Congressman Leo J. Ryan's office supported that statement earlier this year by saying, if the mayors didn't participate in the environmental planning, they would be "at the mercy of the next level" of government.

Mayors and councilmen have also been told of the activities of the federal Housing and Urban Development department in this county — and how its work would go on whether the cities wanted it to or not.

So Friday night, many of the mayors bristled when they declared that the county Board of Supervisors was "shoving it down our throats." And again lamented the loss of local control.

The endorsement of the animal control plan is just advisory, however. Each city council will decide on its own participation.

RECEPTION

After 12 years as superintendent of schools for San Mateo County, Dr. J. Russell Kent is retiring as of Jan. 1. A reception in his honor will be held Nov. 19 from 3 to 6 p.m. at The Galleria, at 101 Kansas St. in San Francisco. Tickets cost $6.50 per person and may be obtained through Kent's secretary, Julie O'Leary, at 333 Main St., Redwood City. For more information, phone the County Office of Education. The deadline for reservations is Nov. 1.

Jobs for Senior Citizens

The Senior Community Service Program has 25 part-time jobs in San Mateo County, but so far officials have not found people to fill them.

Program Director Edmund Burke said those who qualify for the program will be paid $2.65 per hour for their work, plus free hospital coverage and vacation pay.

To qualify for the program, applicants must be 55 or older and must have a "disadvantaged" income. According to the Department of Labor (DOL), a disadvantaged income is $3,140 per year or less for a single-member household. For each additional member of a household, the figure is increased $1,020. The DOL considers Social Security benefits and pensions as part of a person's income.

While it's easy to find men and women who are 55 and older who would be interested in a rewarding part-time job, it's difficult in San Mateo County to find people whose incomes are below the DOL ceilings," Burke said.

The Senior Community Service Program places people in jobs, working 20 hours per week for public and private agencies that are non-profit, such as the American Red Cross and various neighborhood centers.

The federal government started the program in 1968 to provide more jobs for senior citizens and more human services in communities.

Burke said the program "enables the older person thus employed to become a contributing, rather than a dependent, member of society."

Fifty-two people are enrolled in the program here. Six weeks ago an additional budget allocation of $75,000 was made to the program by the National Council on Aging. Those funds opened up the 25 additional work positions.

More information is available by contacting the Senior Community Service Program, 904 Main St., Redwood City 94063.

The Steakery is one of the few fine restaurants in the city that is completely air conditioned, and Phil's costly system maintains spring-like temperatures year-round . . . In San Francisco for a recent convention, Denny Long, vice president of worldwide Anheuser Bush Inc., made a special trip to SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant to reminisce with his friend MIKE GUZMAN, who entertains on the concert grand piano here. Guzman was the pianist when Long had his own band in St. Louis 20 years ago . . . Monday was a Veterans Day holiday for many, and YOLANDA'S, South San Francisco, was wall-to-wall with hungry customers . . . Three different menus to suit individual tastes can be found at NICK GUST'S mecca of restaurants, NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES, in Rockaway Beach. Cocktail lounges for drinks and relaxed conversation, dinner music and dancing, plus scenic views of Pacifica's coastline are also enticing appointments. . . . Backing the cast of top-flight singers is famed pianist MARVIN TARTAK, professor of music at U.C. Berkeley who has accompanied all of the world-famous opera stars. . . . The chefs at VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant are particularly expert with sautees, and you might especially appreciate the Veal Scaloppine, Chicken Livers Saute or Chicken Saute Sec. Other entrees justly popular are Spaghetti Caruso, Baked Fish (Fisherman's style with rice), and Minute Steak Bordelaise. Anything on the menu may be taken out in special insulated containers. Wine selections are varied and most agreeably priced. . . . "The Sound of Music" opened at the Orpheum Theater in San Francisco and, as usual, the stars and cast of this popular musical stage show can be found dining at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of Geary Street's "Theater Row." Rosebud's with superb food and modest prices and an elegant setting, is a gathering place for show biz celebrities. . . . BEARDSLEY'S in Burlingame has quite a historic location. Since the mid-thirites, the corner of Broadway and El Camino has been site of a restaurant favored by countless Peninsulans. LES HYLTON, JACK O'BRIEN and PAT FINNEGAN, who opened Beardsley's in 1973, continue to maintain this tradition ... As a favor to her customers, TILLIE SCHOLTZ, owner of TILLIE'S LIL' FRANKFURT in Moss Beach, will continue her special Oktoberfest dinner through the weekend of Nov. 5. The low-priced German dinner is served on Friday, Saturday and Sunday . . . . SAM VIDUCICH, the always-smiling owner of the ATLANTIC SEAFOOD GROTTO, downtown San Mateo, has even more reason to smile. "Captain's Favorites" on the dinner menu has really caught the fancy of his customers. Selections include clams, salmon, prawns and steak ... LOUIS FRUTSCHI says it's no trick to treat out-of-town visitors to an excellent meal of French delicacies. "Just bring them to L'AUBERGE restaurant and let us pamper them with special service and cuisine," says the culinary expert ... The BAYHILL LOUNGE, located in the Bayhill Shopping Center, San Bruno, really bustles at lunchtime. Executives and secretaries from nearby offices gather here for a midday reprieve from their jobs. The atmosphere is relaxed and the waitresses are friendly ... You can be sure that the chefs at LA PINATA, downtown Burlingame, are well qualified for preparing Mexican specialties. Owner CHRIS VLASSIS personally trains each member of his well-staffed kitchen ... Pizza comes in three different sizes at ROMANO'S Italian and Seafood restaurant, Rockaway Beach. Small, medium and extra large (14") are prepared in many combinations to eat in or take out. Extra amounts of your favorite ingredients can be added if desired.

LAST OF EUCALYPTUS TO GO

Workmen are shown here pruning some of the last of 86 old eucalyptus trees to be removed along Sneath Lane and the northwestern border of Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno. The job began Oct. 5 and involves removal of the 86 trees and the pruning of another 91 on the cemetery property. If all goes well, the job could be finished by Monday, cemetery assistant superintendent John Metzler said. The first plan, to take out about 90 trees, met with a civic furor in mid-1977. But Metzler said agreement ultimately was reached with the city. The intent is to thin out the trees, making them easier to maintain, allowing them to spread out and eliminating the danger of them falling over, as one did on Sneath during a storm last January, Metzler said. The 91 remaining trees will bud again next year, he added. Some of the trees removed were dead or were weakened by heart rot, too, Metzler said. The contractor is Peacock Tree Surgery, Inc. of Cleveland, Mis. (Dave Dornias Photo)

SSF Gives OK to 182 Condos

Construction of 182 condominiums on Willow Avenue at Grand Avenue in South San Francisco was approved this week.

Builder Maurice Brosnan told the Planning Commission the project will be undertaken in 20 phases and will include 17 new buildings and three existing buildings with 50 more units.

Nearly 350 parking spaces will be provided for the two- and three-bedroom condominiums. There will be three driveways along Willow Avenue but none along Grand Avenue.

The plans include construction of a tennis court over a parking lot at the end of the private cul-de-sac.

In other action, the Planning Commission approved creation of a Rural Estates zone for all rural areas in the unincorporated parts of the county bounded by South San Francisco.

This zone is designed to preserve the rural character of these so-called islands, including the Country Club Estates area.

The matter now goes to the City Council.

Careful, Margo, This Is Suburbia

(ED. NOTE: This is an open letter directed to Margo St. James, organizer and chief spokesman behind the Hookers' Ball which made its Peninsula debut last weekend. An estimated 12,000 to 14,000 persons showed up to take part in the doings.)

Dear Ms. St. James:

I am really getting worried about the direction your Hookers' Ball is taking. It used to be a camp occasion, something extraordinary even for the local cognoscenti.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Average would have nothing to do with that lewd shindig during its formative years. But now that you're holding it at the Cow Palace right there in the pulsating heart of Middle America your whole movement is in danger of becoming just another typical suburban phenomenon, like the PTA or Jack in the Box.

I don't think you want your harlots to become totally respectable. That's the worst thing that could happen to them. Once they're co-opted by the double knit crowd, it's all over for them. They become one of us, part of the faceless mob.

But that's what appears to be happening since you've moved into San Mateo County.

Holding your soiree at the Cow Palace can only hasten that leavening process. The Cow Palace is the enlightened home of wrestling, minor league hockey and the Grand National. A month ago, the Rabbit Promoters of San Mateo took over the old barn for a show. Even at your own event last Friday, there was sawdust on the floor.

And then there were those amusement booths in the exhibition hall. I didn't know whether I was bartending at a convention of computer experts or a preview of the Grand National's horde of heifers which are due later this week.

All we needed was a welcoming speech from the mayor of Daly City and the evening would have been complete.

I knew we were in trouble when a well-dressed lawyer from Menlo Park approached the bar and said, "Gee, I had no idea people were doing this sort of thing in San Francisco."

See, that's my point. You're bringing San Francisco's traveling freak show to the Peninsula, you're making the bourgeoisie pay to see it and you're going to find out that the straight folks will usurp your mantle of creative indecency.

I wouldn't be surprised to see the Hookers' Ball become a franchise deal. Pretty soon, we'll have a form of the Hookers' Ball on the tube, with Jim Lange as host. We'll have the Strumpet of the Month sponsored by a savings and loan company. There will be a Take a Trollop to Lunch campaign sponsored by the Peninsula Humane Society.

Do you see what I'm getting at?

The Hookers' Ball is in danger of finding itself on every suburbanite's social calendar. That has to be certain death. Last weekend, there were more guys in suits and ties at the Hookers' Ball than there were in stages of undress. There were more cameras than creeps. At any moment, I fully expected to find a tour bus pull up in front of the Cow Palace to disgorge 50 or 60 of the traveling curious, all armed with Polaroids. It didn't happen. But wait until next year.

You're going to wake up some morning and learn that the Hookers' Ball has become institutionalized. When the gawkers start to outnumber the weird, you have to ask yourself whether the whole thing is really worth it.

If all this sounds like some kind of nasty putdown, I'm sorry. I don't mean to be overly critical. It's just that we've got so little left that is really fodder for Fellini that it seems somehow tragic to have it made banal and bland.

Suburbia is the great Mixmaster. It homogenizes everything it touches. When the time comes that a naked man wearing only whips and chains draws only yawns from the assembled multitude, you've got yourself a credibility crisis. And that's basically what happened last weekend.

As I told the Menlo Park gentleman, "Sir, haven't you been up to some of the raunchier parts of San Francisco lately?"

"Golly, no, I haven't," he said, adjusting his tie. "I guess I've been missing out."

I didn't argue with him. He was too busy taking pictures to worry about philosophy.

Margo, maybe it's time to consider shifting your night of reveling back to San Francisco. I'm sure the good citizens of Daly City won't put up much of a fuss if you do. And neither will the Cow Palace.

Sincerely,

John Horgan,

Bartending Person

Fall Session to Explain Service for Shut-ins

The Friendly Visiting Service which provides contact to needy shut-ins and others will be the subject of discussion Nov. 1 when the annual Fall Informational and Training Meeting is staged at the Assistance League's Chapter House, 528 N. San Mateo Drive, San Mateo.

Mrs. Robert Sawyer, chairman of the FVS Advisory Board, will call the 1:30 p.m. session to order, and Mrs. Eric Ashley will conduct the event.

A project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County, Friendly Visiting Service has been described by its volunteers as "a service that opens windows to an outside world." It provides person-to-person contact with someone who cares enough to act as a friend to one confined to a nursing or boarding home or his or her own residence.

Since there is a continuing need for new volunteer visitors throughout the county, Friendly Visiting Services invites those with a desire to commit themselves to a weekly visit to attend the Nov. 1 meeting. During the afternoon Dr. John Koeker, parish associate counselor, will discuss "Communication — Techniques for the Visitor."

Also addressing the group will be Peninsula Hospital Assistant Chaplain Mrs. William Applegate whose topic will be "Human Potential."

The mechanics of visiting also will be explained by Mrs. William Green, director of the service, who emphasizes that previous experience is not necessary since the art of visiting is compassion.

Because there are times when people with knowledge of a second language are needed, those who are bi-lingual are especially welcome.

Hatlo Market Election Debate

The first and only public debate on the proposed downtown San Bruno community center will be Thursday.

With the election less than a week away, community center proponent Rosemary Phipps Pfeiffer and opponent John Barnard will debate the pros and cons, beginning at 8 p.m. at the Skyhouse restaurant in the Pacific Heights Shopping Plaza.

The debate is sponsored by the Pacific Heights Association.

San Brunans will vote Nov. 7 on the controversial issue — construction of the center proposed for the former Hatlo Market at 446 San Mateo Ave.

The outcome of the vote is advisory only and not binding on the City Council.

The ballot measure, Proposition B, will say:

"Shall the City of San Bruno proceed to complete the downtown community center project (Hatlo site) with property purchase, remodeling and furnishing costs of approximately $550,000, to be financed with federal funds, and annual operating costs of approximately $20,000 to be locally financed from the city general fund. This is an advisory measure."

When the City Council agreed to put the measure on the ballot, it was on a 3-2 vote, with Mayor Dick Griffith and Councilman Tom Ricci against it. Getting the measure on the ballot was a victory for Councilman Doug Dawkins, a long-time opponent of the project.

Mrs. Pfeiffer, a San Bruno planning commissioner, is one of the signers of the ballot argument in favor of the center.

That argument states, in part, "The people of San Bruno, with a yes vote on this ballot measure, have a unique opportunity to affirm the fact that they are a community caring about each other. San Bruno will have a choice to accept a facility to serve the needs of the entire community — a meeting place for citizens of all ages both as individuals and as members of service clubs and groups."

Barnard, a city councilman, was not one of the signers of the ballot argument against the project, although he is a long-time opponent and frequently calls the proposed community center a "white elephant."

The argument against the center states, "Believe it or not, the bureaucrats have come up with another way to spend your money...With $854,086 of your funds being committed, this proposal violates the spirit of Proposition 13 by creating excessive governmental expense. And this figure is only for starters...Can we afford a million dollar building that is smaller than the War Memorial Building at San Bruno Park?"

2 San Bruno Budget Sessions This Week

Although a number of budget sessions were held in June, the San Bruno City Council today again will wade through the 1978-79 fiscal year budget.

The session, the first of two this week, begins at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers at City Hall. The second session will be Friday, at the same time and in the same place.

The delay in adopting the budget was the city's uncertainty aoout the amount of funds it would receive from the state. In June, City Manager Gerald Minford said he hoped the city would receive about $400,000 to help recoup a $650,000 revenue loss as a result of the passage of Proposition 13. However, the city now knows that it will receive only $210,000.

Minford's proposed budget totals $8.6 million and includes all grants, capital improvements, revenue sharing, insurance and Home Box Office costs and fees. Of this total, $5.8 million is for tax-supported operations.
